Recognition Comes From Some Unexpected Places

This prestigious award for excellence in graphic design was recently presented to STACK'S by the Consolidated Paper Company in recognition of our successful efforts to tell our story in the most effective way possible.

We're pleased about it, of course.

But—more important—and more to the point—the award highlights the fact that, in every way possible, STACK'S strives to do its best to create interest in its auction sales...presenting the material in its proper light...and attracting large, interested audiences to the event itself.

We know that the numismatic fraternity reacts favorably to those efforts. We're delighted that someone outside of that select group does also.

Thank you both.

Melting with tenderness and mild compassion,

(Act IV, scene IV)

During the reign of Charles II, workmen in the process of demolishing a stone staircase in a section of the Tower of London, named the White Tower, found at a depth of ten feet a wooden chest containing the skeletons of two children. The bones were eventually placed in an urn and enshrined in Westminster Abbey, in the year 1674. It was presumed the bones were those of the nephews of Richard of Gloucester, which rumor and most early sources claimed he murdered. In July of the year 1933, due no doubt to continual debate and unanswered queries, the urn was opened and the bones were examined by an eminent physician and a dentist. They discovered that the older skeleton was of a child about 13, and the younger one of a child about 10 years old. Edward V was born 1470, and his brother in August, 1473, and these dates would fit in with the age of the princes of Edward IV at the time of their death, presumed to be between July and September, 1483. Many a bloody act had been committed in the Tower, but they nevertheless could be the bones of the two princes if it could be established that they are between 450 and 500 years old. Richard certainly had the motive to commit such a foul deed, as the contents of the early sources seem to indicate.

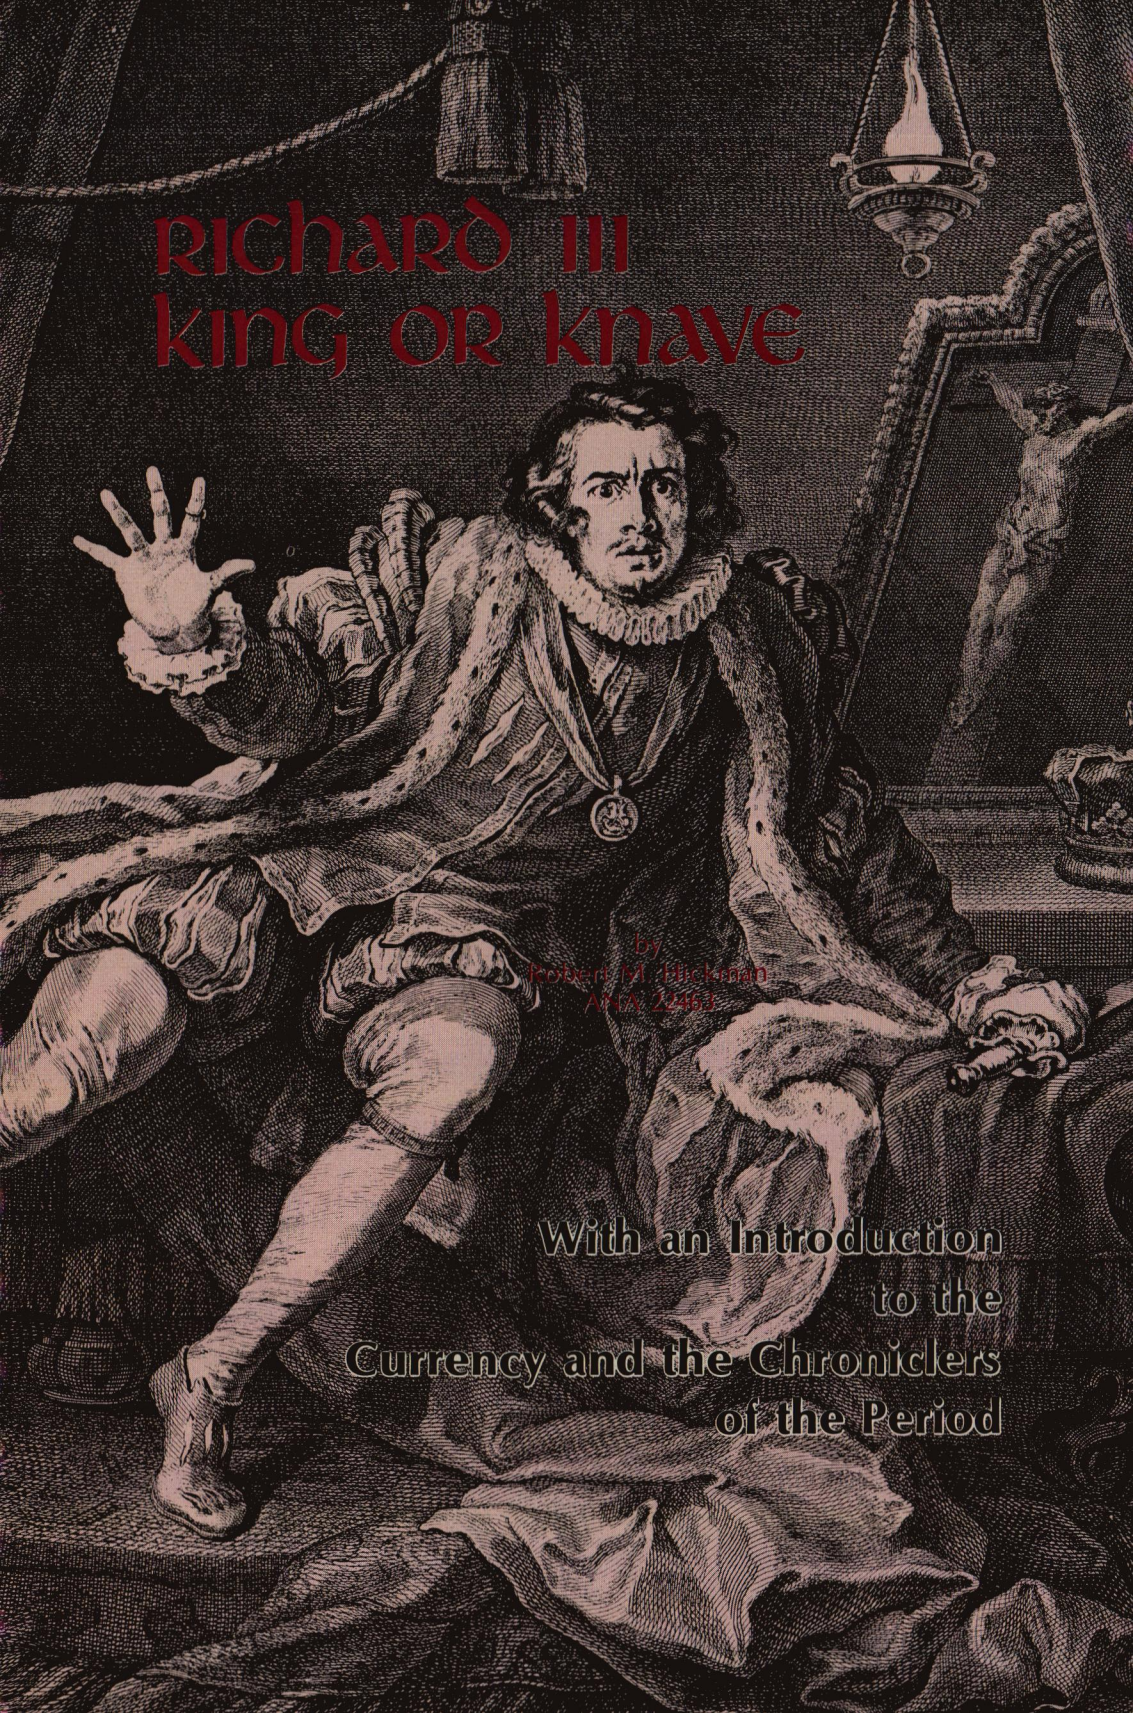

Richard's Journey to Kingship

Richard Plantagenet was born at Fotheringhay Castle, Northamptonshire on October 2, 1452. He was the son of Richard, Duke of York, one of the most powerful and ablest noblemen in the kingdom. His brother Edward, who became King in 1461, was born on April 28, 1442. Richard was only eight years old when his father and brother Edmund were slain at the battle of Wakefield on December 30, 1460. At an early age he was made commissioner for the southwestern counties, and in 1464 the estates of the Lancastrian Lord Hungerford were bestowed on him. As he grew up he remained close to Edward and when his brother became King, Richard served as a valuable military and political partner.

Let's review the events which led up to the reign of Richard III and so greatly effected his personality as king. Henry V, (1413-1422) who was victorious at the famous battle of Agincourt in Normandy, in which 11,000 Frenchmen died, had said before the battle, "if God give us victory, it will be plain that we owe it to his grace." It was a great triumph and preceded the conquest of Normandy. His son who became Henry VI, inherited the crown as an infant, under protectorship. He grew up a feeble ruler, both physically and mentally, with little control of the country, and a losing battle for his lands in France, during the time of Joan of Arc. Henry's fruitless marriage to Margaret Anjou, French princess, and his inefficient rule led to conflict with Richard, Duke of York (of the White Rose) who claimed the crown in his own right. The King's marriage to Margaret was unpopular in England, as the bride brought no dowry and one of the conditions of the marriage was the surrender of some English territory in France. Queen Margaret dismissed Richard, Duke of York, (father of Richard III) as protector of the King. This rebuff caused him to gather his forces for battle. Civil war flared between the two houses of York and Lancaster. Richard was killed at the battle of Wakefield, with the house of Lancaster victorious. Edward, the eldest son of the duke and a shrewd and gifted leader took his place.

The struggle that ensued was called War of the Roses, the badge of the House of Lancaster being a red rose and that of the House of York a white rose. The war raged intermittently from 1455

About the Author

Born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania in 1912, Robert M. Hickman had little interest in numismatics until he entered the banking field. It was as a teller with the Central Penn National Bank that his interest blossomed, principally in the direction of ancient and medieval numismatics and history. His specialties are coins of the Roman Empire and Great Britain. Not unknown to readers of The Numismatist, Mr. Hickman has previously had published here A Brief History of King John, December, 1968, and The Roman Conquest of Britain, August, 1969.

to 1485. It was not a clearcut struggle, for the warfare originated in the clash of rival magnates and their greedy retines. It was a lawless age and a spirit of discontent prevailed that threatened the social structure of the entire area.

Shortly after the Yorkist victory at Mortimor's Cross, while Parliament was sitting, Edward declared himself king. The result was a mighty shout of approval, on this date of March 4, 1461. Henry VI made his escape, but was soon captured, there to be put in the Tower where he remained for the next nine years. Edward married Elizabeth of Woodville, alienating the nobles and the powerful Earl of Warwick, called the kingmaker, whose policy lay in a close connection with France. The Duke had been negotiating for a French marriage.

King Edward fled into exile in Holland in the year 1470. However the exile was brief, and he returned to England in 1471 with his followers. With his brother Richard in command, Edward won decisive victories at Barnet and Tewkesbury, and secured the crown, while Henry VI, who had reoccupied the throne during Edward's brief exile, was slain May 21, 1471 in the Tower by a dagger. Rumors indicate that Richard was implicated in this act.

King Edward had two brothers — Richard, Duke of Gloucester, and George, Duke of Clarence. George married the eldest daughter of the Earl of Warwick, named Isabel, and came under his influence. They were driven out when King Edward returned from exile. With Richard it was different, as Edward IV depended more and more on his assistance and ability. While Richard was in Kent battling with the Lancastrians, the death of Henry VI was announced in London on May 25, 1471. Rumors circulated that Henry had been murdered because of Yorkist fears that war would continue as long as he lived. Richard proved able in fighting the Scots, capturing Edinburgh and forcing James III to ask for a truce. He returned to London before Christmas, 1482, to receive the gratitude of the king and the people.

But what were the events which led to brother George being eliminated from this royal family? Richard, Duke of Gloucester, was courting Anne Neville, sister of the wife of the Duke of Clarence, and the courtship was bitterly opposed by the Duke of Clarence. They were married, as the history of the period makes clear, in 1473, through a dispensation from the Pope because Anne was his first cousin. It seems there were no complications, and it was even rumored that Richard forced the lady into marriage. They resided at Middleham Castle, situated in the section called North Riding on the Ouse River.

There are some who say Richard influenced the King to have his brother George executed, and that Richard's pretended defence was of a weak nature. The story goes that George, Duke of Clarence, defended a friend of his, who it was said attempted to poison the King, and also that he was involved in attempts to dethrone King Edward. George was placed in the Tower, charged with treason, and put to death on Feb. 18, 1478, they say drowned in a bath. The London Chronicle states "in a barrell of Malmsey wine," but there is no means of checking its accuracy. The chronicler Mancini suggests that Elizabeth the Queen persuaded King Edward to do away with the Duke of Clarence so that her children could inherit the throne.

Edward, shaken in health, was quite willing to accept Richard's counsel, and Parliament was also tolerant to his requests. The King had two sons, Edward V, 13, and Richard, Duke of York, 10. Therefore the peaceful succession of his eldest son contented the mind of the dying King. He added an important codicil to his will, bequeathing Edward V, his heir, and his realm to the protection of his brother Richard, Duke of Gloucester.

Richard, the chief prop of his brother, kept himself far from the intrigues of the court. The Queen, her eldest brother Anthony, Earl Rivers, and her two sons by her first marriage, the Marquess Dorset and Lord Richard Grey, engaged in a bitter feud with the Lord Chamberlain, William Lord Hastings. Shortly before he died Edward IV secured a reconciliation between the Woodvilles and Hastings.

There seems to be a disagreement over the fact that Edward made Richard protector. The Great Chronicle and the Croyland Chronicle agree with Thomas More in saying that the council appointed Richard after he arrived in London.

The king gradually declined and died on April 9, 1483. "King Edward was princely to behold," says Thomas More, "of quick wit, high spirit and a retentive memory." No doubt he was speaking of the king in his prime. Still he left the country financially secure.

The news of the King's death soon spread. The Duke of Gloucester was in Yorkshire, but Lord Hastings, the chamberlain, sent his curt message, "the king has left all to your protection, goods, heir, realm. Secure the person of our souverign Lord Edward the fifth and get you to London." This he proceeded to do. Prince Edward was at Ludlow, on the border of Wales under the guardianship of his uncle, Earl Rivers. Richard and the Duke of Buckingham, with mounted men, secured the person of Edward V at Stony Stratford, claiming that the Woodvilles, mainly the Queen, aimed at depriving the Duke of Gloucester of his protectorship. Richard forced his nephew to support him and be content with his father's ordinance.

But it was not long before Prince Edward was forced to reside in the Tower, not to be considered a prisoner so Richard would say. The Duke of York was in sanctuary with the Queen, but not for long. He also was delivered up to the Duke of Gloucester, to be sent to the Tower, for their protection. As Polydore Vergil says, "he began to be kindled with an ardent desire for sovereignty." Thomas More says, "When ye protector had both ye children in his hands, he opened himself more boldly both to certain other men, also chiefly to the Duke of Buckingham." Polydore claims that Hastings was as terrified as everyone else when he heard that Edward V was in Richard's hands and that he regretted the support he had given the Duke.

After Parliament accepted Bishop Stillington's story proclaiming the children of Edward IV illegitimate, the citizens of London became aroused. They were told that the sons were bastards because the King had contracted a marriage with one Eleanor Butler before his marriage with Queen Elizabeth, and that the blood of Richard's own brother George, Duke of Clarence, had been attainted. That left no assured and uncorrupted blood of Richard, Duke of York, the father, except in the person of Richard, Duke of Gloucester (so states the Croyland Chronicle). It was now that events moved quickly. In response to a petition by the populace the assembly approved the motion that the crown be placed on the head of Richard. The Duke seats himself on the King's bench in Westminster Hall and considers himself ruler from this day on. The coronation took place on July 6, 1483. In the one Parliament he summoned, the provisions he had put into the statutes may have proved his desire to rule the English people with justice, or was it just the fear that unpopular measures might unseat him. However, he was considered a reformer and to some extent an innovator.

In the spring of 1484 Richard and his ailing wife Anne made a processional through the Eastern counties. There the startling news was received that their son had died. Richard had hoped that he would succeed on the throne. The progress was cancelled and they hurried back to Middleham. Trouble upon trouble, Anne who had had a lingering illness died on March 16, 1485. The rumors spread that she had been poisoned, and Richard was suspected of the worst. Immediately after the funeral, King Richard summoned his council to deny the malicious story that was now circulating. It was being rumored that he did way with his wife to marry his niece Princess Elizabeth. Richard sent Elizabeth to the castle of sheriff Hutton in order to still the ugly rumors. (Elizabeth married Henry VII on January 18, 1486.)

The Chronicles of the Period Recall a Hideous Crime

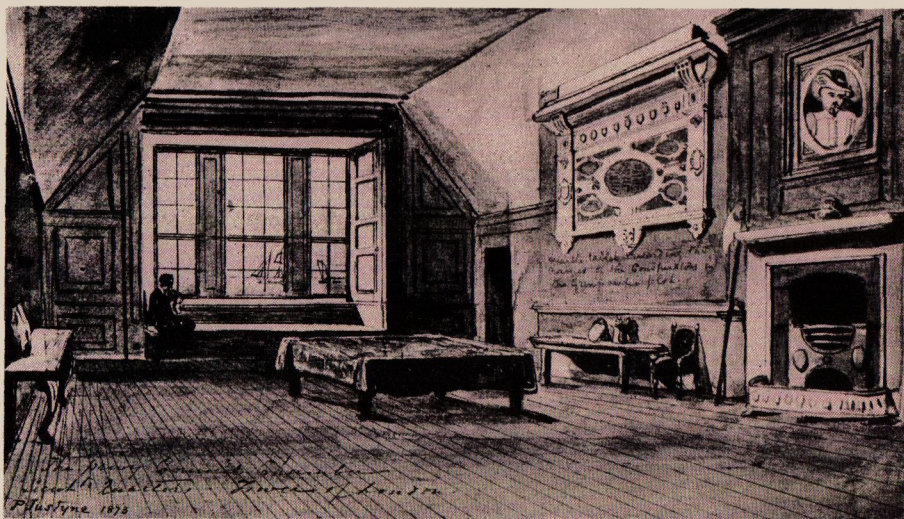

The chronicles must now be referred to, to be sifted for the truth, and to throw what light we can on what did happen at this time. It is a fascinating period, and gives credit to the saying that truth is stranger than fiction. Beginning with the contemporary chroniclers of the period, there follows numerous statements taken from history concerning Richard and the indicated murder of his two young nephews.

One of the earliest chronicles was the Croyland Chronicle, written about 1486, with information supplied by John Russell who was Lord Chancellor under Richard. In the words of Walpole the chronicle was 'very barren and concise.' However it referred to the illegitimacy of Edward IV children, as I had mentioned before. It did not, however, throw much light on the death of the innocents.

There were two chronicles which were compiled from the municipal records of London, written early in the sixteenth century. The Great Chronicle which had little to add, does specify that after Easter of 1484, "much whispering was among the people that the king had put the children to death." Why after Easter? It is possible that since Richard's son died less than a week following Easter Sunday, some folk saw in the boy's death a judgement of heaven which proved that the king had killed his nephews. The Newe Chronicles of England and France by Robert Fabyan, a merchant who died in 1512, does not bear hard against Richard. In 1491, John Rous composed the Historia Regum Angliae, considered of little worth concerning Richard, mostly because of its emphasis on rumors.

One of the earliest chronicles was composed by Dominic Mancini who wrote an impartial eye-witness account of the period from the death of Edward IV until July 6, 1483. It was about this time when he left London for the continent. This manuscript was composed in December 1483, and was discovered by C.A.J. Armstrong possibly in Italy and translated from the Latin into English. The only contemporary writer to mention events in the Tower, Mancini stated: "... all the attendants who had waited upon the king (Edw. V) were denied access to him. He and his brother were withdrawn into the inner apartments of the Tower proper, and day by day began to be seen more rarely behind the bars and windows, till at length they ceased to appear altogether. . . The young king like a victim prepared for sacrifice sought remission of his sins by daily confession and penance. Whether however he had been done away with, and by what manner of death, so far I have not at all discovered." This significant information does throw some light on the events, if the chronicle can be relied upon. Mancini also reports on the views in the council, of which there were two. One held to Edward's will, the protector to govern, and the other view of the Woodvilles who feared usurpation, and what would become of them if Richard became king. Mancini says of Edward V: "He had scholarly attainments, dignity and charm."

Polydore Vergil wrote the Anglica Historia, his account of King Richard's life, in 1514, close to the time when More wrote his chronicle. Of the event in question, he wrote, "William Hastings his chamberlain sent from London trusty messengers in post to certify him of his brother's death. When Richard had intelligence here of this, he began to be kindled with an ardent desire of sovereignty. He commanded all men to swear obedience unto prince Edward (Edw. V, his nephew), himself was the first to take the oath which soon after he was the first to violate." Vergil arrived in England in 1502 and he inherited the Tudor version of Richard's crimes. His narrative was much shorter than that of More and is more detached in its telling of the tale. He also blames Tyrell saying, "he rode sorrowfully to London, and murdered those babes of thysself royal." Richard permitted the rumor to spread so that after people understood no male issue of King Edward to be alive, they would bear and sustain his government.

Horace Walpole who wrote his Historic Doubts in 1768, stoutly defended Richard of his guilt. However, in his summary he does say: "I know not what to think of the death of Edward the fifth; I can neither entirely acquit Richard of it, nor condemn him; because there are no proofs on either side; and though a court of justice, from that defect of evidence, absolve him."

Our great source here is Sir Thomas More whose chronicle, which reads more like a drama, was published in 1513, only 28 years after the death of Richard at Bosworth Field. Grafton, who followed More, copies him verbatim, as did Holinshed, the chronicler Shakespeare used when preparing his immortal plays. More it did seem cast down his pen suddenly, and left his chronicle unfinished, at the time when John Morton, the chancellor with whom More had stayed for several years, became associated with the Duke of Buckingham. Probably the shadow of Henry VII, the present king, looming off stage, and the fact that many persons from the period were still living, contributed to his decision. Cardinal Morton was inciting Henry to rise up against Richard as his unfinished chronicle ends, before the final downfall of Richard at the battle of Bosworth. Richard feared that the Duke of Richmond, later Henry VII, would marry the widowed queen's eldest daughter, or the queen herself. He fancied Lady Elizabeth himself, even though he was married to Anne, who was sickly and rumored to have been poisoned by him.

An estimate as to the accuracy of More's writings must be based on an investigation of the sources from which he drew, which he does not name. There is little doubt as to his ability and brilliancy as a writer. Even though he wrote under the Tudor king, Henry VII, he was not biased in his writings. More introduces an immense amount of detail, and description in his work, far removing himself from contemporary narrators who for the most part merely repeated rumors. He was as pro-Edward IV as he was anti-Richard. When he welcomed the young Henry VIII to the throne he used the occasion to attack the policies of Henry VII. Thomas More was chancellor under Henry VIII and was finally beheaded because he did not support Henry in his effort to divorce Catherine of Aragon to marry Anne Boleyn. His courage and integrity make his story of Richard's wickedness believable, not fearing to reveal the truth as he saw it.

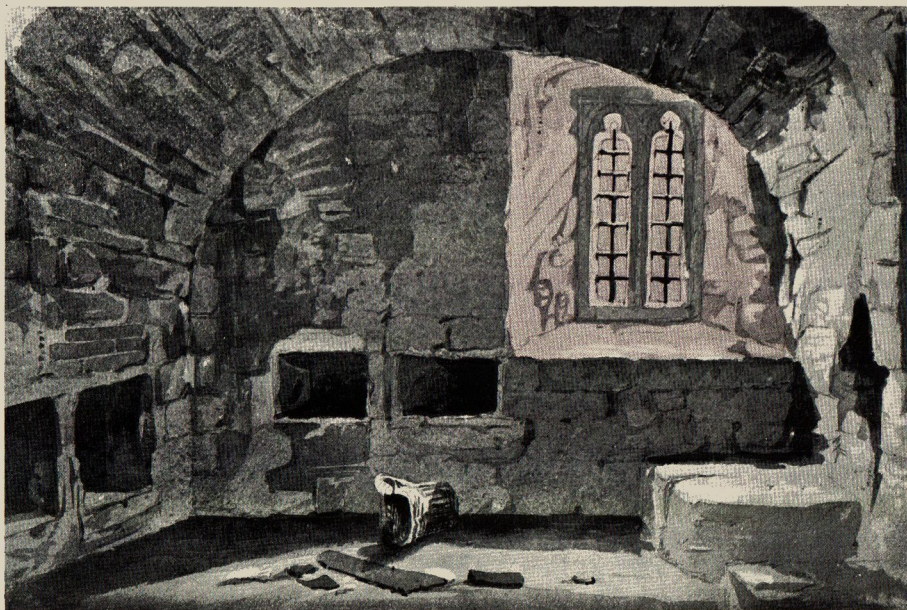

More's image of Richard is only the reflection of the age. Chief among More's informants was John Morton who may have left some form of written narrative. More stayed with Morton, and he could have listened to eye-witness accounts of events. John Morton lived through turbulent years in which York and Lancaster struggled and he could have heard something about the disappearance of the little princes. More had no lack of informants within the circles in which he moved. It was probably to his benefit that the sources remain unknown.

The substance of the tale is in what Thomas More related concerning the death of the infants. He tells a moving story. When Richard, in his summer's progress of 1483, reached Gloucester, he suddenly decided that he must kill his nephews to secure his throne, and so dispatched one John Grene, "whom he specially trusted" with a letter and credence to Sir Robert Brackenbury, Constable of the Tower, commanding Brackenbury to put the children to death.

When Grene bore back the blunt answer of Brackenbury that he would never do the deed, Richard, now at Warwick, said to "a secret page of his" that night as he brooded angrily on Brackenbury's refusal, "Ah, whom shall a man trust . . . ?" The page had a ready answer, "Sir . . . there lieth one on your pallet without, that I dare well say to do your grace pleasure, the thing were right hard that he would refuse," meaning James Tyrell, a very ambitious man who was jealous of the favor which Radcliffe and Catesby had won from the king. Richard at once summoned Tyrell to his chamber and "brake to him secretly his mind in this mischevous matter." Finding Tyrell instantly ready for the work, Richard armed him with a letter to Brackenbury, commanding that the keys of the Tower be delivered to Tyrell for one night. The Princes, according to More, were then in the exclusive charge of one William Slaughter, who, however, makes no further appearance in the story.

As assassins Tyrell appointed Miles Forest, one of the custodians of the Princes, "a fellow fleshed in murder before time," and "one John Dighton his own horsekeeper, a broad square strong knave." All the other attendants having been sent away, about midnight Forest and Dighton stole upon the sleeping princes, "suddenly lapped them up among the (bed) clothes" forced the "Featherbed and pillows hard unto their mouths," and so dispatched them. Tyrell had them buried at once "at the stair foot, meetly deep in the ground under a great heap of stones." When Tyrell apprised Richard of the deed, the king gave him great thanks, "and as some say there made him knight." But Richard "allowed not, as I have heard, the burying in so vile a corner. Whereupon they say that a priest of Sir Robert Brackenbury took up the bodies again, and secretly interred them in such place, as by the occasion of his death, which only know it, could never since come to light."

Controversy over who murdered the princes has raged ever since. Indication of the messenger John Grene is unlikely in view of the commonness of the name, and how often it appears in the records. Little is known about Sir Robert Brackenbury until he became master of the monies and Constable of the Tower on July 17, 1483. He received large grants from the crown in 1484, presumably for his aid in Buckingham's rebellion. He remained loyal to Richard and died with him at Bosworth. More and Vergil excuse him from any share in the death of the princes. Miles Forest died before September 1484, adding support to More's account. John Dighton seemed to get off better. He was made bailiff of Ayton, Staffordshire on March 7, 1484, and it was believed he died in 1520.

Now of the culprit Tyrell. He was a strong Yorkist, and Richard made him a knight after the battle of Tewkesbury on May 3, 1471, according to More, and a knight banneret for good service in the Scots campaign of 1482. Tyrell also took part in Richard's coronation. It appears that he was a stout defender. The wardrobe accounts indicate that Tyrell did ride from York to London about the time of the king's progress in 1483. He was trusted by Richard completely, and a large number of grants were given him between 1483-85. He is implicated in the death of the princes by Poldore, the Great Chronicle and More. He received many preferments under Henry VII, but became involved in a conspiracy in 1501 and was beheaded. No confession which he and Dighton are supposed to have made is extant.

Richard III Falls But Remains a Controversy

It is now time to speak of Henry VII (1485-1509) who was to cause the downfall of Richard III. After the Yorkist Edward IV seized the English throne from Henry VI in 1471, Henry Tudor, a Lancastrian took refuge in Brittany. He became head of the House of Lancaster on the death of the mentally sick Henry VI, remaining the chief rival after the accession of Richard III. His father Edmund Tudor, Earl of Richmond, was the issue of a liaison making his claims devious and flawed. It is difficult to see how Henry could have done the evil deed of the murder of the princes, but some historians suspect him or a selected agent. Henry said nothing about the infants' death until 1502 when as Henry claimed, "Tyrell confessed before he was executed," Henry being King of England at the time. However, no records were found to substantiate the claim that Tyrell confessed to the crime. The widowed queen of Edward IV secretly agreed to give her daughter to Henry Tudor in September 1483, and she would hardly have committed herself to this agreement unless she thought her sons were dead. The rumors of the princes' death caused men to flock to Henry's cause.

Henry Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, has also been suspected of the crime. Richard had rewarded the Duke well for his part for remaining at his side in time of need. As Constable of England he had access to the Tower, and stayed in London when Richard went on his progress. He joined Richard at Gloucester before going to his castle at Brecon, Wales.

However, the Duke fell under the spell of John Morton in attempting to put the Earl of Richmond on the throne. King Richard became suspect and had him executed. There is a slim possibility that the Duke of Buckingham accomplished the deed, and spread the rumors that Richard was the guilty one. The Lords and Knights taken at Northampton and Stony Stratford who were protecting the young king and his brother, namely the Queen's brother Earl Rivers, Lord Richard Grey and Sir Thomas Vaughan, were beheaded at Pontefract the same day as the Duke of Buckingham by Sir Richard Ratcliff whose services Richard especially used. More states, "This knight bringing them out of ye prison to ye scaffold and shewing to the people about ye they were traitors, not suffering them to speke and declare their innocence lest their words might have inclined men to pity them."

There is a large English history, a chronicle of the kings of England, by Sir Richard Baker, dated 1684. It begins with the invasion by the Romans, and is quite complete from William the Conqueror up to Charles II. Many important authors contributed to the chronicle such as, Bede the Saxon, Geoffry of Monmouth, Roger Hoveden, John Froissart, William Caxton, Thomas More, Frances Bacon and William Camden to name a few. After the history of each king it gives his accomplishments, great men of his reign, and his character. This is what it states about Richard III:

There never was in any man a greater uniformity of body and mind, than was in him; both of them equally deformed. Of body he was but low, crook'd, back'd, hook-shouldered, spay-footed, and goggle-eyed, his face little and round, his complexion swarthy, his left arm from his birth dry and withered; born a monster in nature, with all his teeth, with hair on his head and nails on his fingers and toes. And just such were the qualities of his mind; one quality he had in ordinary, which was, to look fawningly when he plotted, sternly when he executed. These vices, which in other men are passions, in him were habits; and his cruelty was not upon occasion, but natural. If at any time he showed virtue, it was but pretence; the truth of his mind was only lying and falsehood. He was full of courage, and yet not valient; valour consisting not only in doing, but as well in suffering, which he could not abide. He was politick, and yet not wise; policy looking but to the middle, wisdom to the end; which he did, and did not. And it was not so much ambition that made him desire the crown, as cruelty; that it might be in his power to kill at his pleasure; and to say the truth, he was scarce of the number of men who consist of flesh and blood. One miracle we may say he did; which was, that he made the truth of history to exceed the fiction of poetry, being a greater harpy than those that were feigned. He would have fain have been accounted a good king, but for his life he could not be a good man; and it is an impossible thing to be one without the other. He left no issue behind him; and it had been pity he should, at least in his own image; one such monster was enough for many ages.

The author of this analysis did exaggerate, and make him a beast, but much of what he said is true. Following this under "Affairs of the Church," is this short statement, in speaking of the companion of Edward IV: "Only Shore's wife might complain, why she should do penance for offending lightly against the seventh commandment; and King Richard do none for offending heavily against all the ten, but that perhaps he had gotten some good fellow to be his confessor."

In an early chronicle by John Trussell, of contemporary binding of calf, printed in 1636 named A Continuation of the Collection of the History of England from Richard II to Richard III, it is stated: "The Duke of Gloucester by the contrivement and procurement of the Duke of Buckingham by the decree of the council table is appointed, and established protector of the king and kingdom, which place added such fuel to the ambitious fire of his heart, that it burnt all love, natural respect or duty, either to country, kindred or king, and nothing sets his imagination to work, but to compass the means how to bring his traitorous designs to effect; which was to make away the king (Edward V) and his brother, which he is resolved wickedly to attempt;" and the author adds, "Who or whatever opposed his aspiring pride or profitable pleasure, was by his plotting cunningly and covertly taken away or removed."

Frances Bacon was an English philosopher and statesman, and it must be said that he made a marked contribution to literature. He impressed with the belief that truth is not derived from authority, and that knowledge is the fruit of experience. From a chronicle which Lord Bacon authored about the history of the reign of Henry VII, he had this to say about Richard III:

Here is a short list of the rulers of the period with the obverse and reverse inscriptions of their issues:

SALVATOR

The Saviour

And although he were a prince in militar virtue approved, jealous of that honor of the English nation, and likewise a good lawmaker, for the sake and solace of the common people; yet his cruelties and parricides, in the opinion of all men, weighed down his virtues and merits: and in the opinion of wise men, even those virtues themselves were conceived to be rather feigned, and affected things to serve his ambition, than true qualities ingenerate in his judgement or nature. — He was not without secret trains and mines to turn envy and hatred upon his brother's government; as having an expectation and a kind of divination, that the king, by reason of his many disorders, could not be of long life, but was like to leave his sonnes of tender years; and then he know well, how easy a step it was, from the place of protector, and first prince of the blood, to the crown, — And as for the politike and wholesome laws which were enacted in his time, they were interpreted to be but the brocage of an usurper, thereby to woo, and win the hearts of the people; as being conscious to himself that the true obligations of sovereignty in him failed, and were wanting!

In reporting the death of Richard at Bosworth Field (Aug. 22, 1485) Polydore Vergil states: "The report is that King Richard might have sought to save himself by flight; for they who were about him, seeing the soldiers even from the first stroke to lift their weapons feebly and faintly, and some of them to depart the field. They brought him swift horses, but he who was not ignorant that the people hated him, out of hope to have any better hap afterwards, is sayd to have answered that that very day would make end either of war or life, such great fearlessness and such huge force of mind he had. He came to the field with the crown on his head, that thereby he might either make a beginning or end of his reign." (Henry Tudor, soon to be Henry the VII defeated Richard at Bosworth and Richard was slain.)

Coinage of Richard III & the Period

Since the reign of Edward III the English coins had undergone little improvement in the technique of die cutting. The silver coinage had retained the same facing portrait and design of the cross and pellets. Lord Hastings resumed the mastership of the mint after the restoration of Edward IV (1471-1473). The initial marks facilitated the classification of the coins, with the location of the pellets playing an important part. Edward IV issued in his second reign, in gold, the angel, and half angel. In silver the groat, halfgroat, penny and half-penny, with many types of initial marks. The design of St. Michael slaying the dragon on the obverse of the angel, with a ship bearing a cross on the reverse, caused it to be used as a talisman by the Tudor and Stuart monarchs, to be given to the sick, whom they had touched for the King's evil was supposed to heal the patient. This accounts for the large number of pierced specimens which exist, especially of James I and Charles I.

For years the initial mark of sun and rose was attributed to Edward V, but the consensus of leading numismatists now credit Edward IV with first issuing those initial marks. The few coins attributed to Edward V were struck under the protectorship of Richard III and are extremely rare, having the initial mark of the boar's head on the obverse, and the sun and rose on the reverse. The boar's head was the personal mark of Richard III. The coins of Edward V were struck at London.

The coins of Richard were struck at three mints — London, York and Durham. The latter mint used the lis as the initial mark. The system of marking ecclesiastical coins (pence and half-groats) with an initial or initials of the Archbishop or Bishop who issued them, now became customary under Edward IV at the mints of Durham and York. The gold coins of Richard are extremely rare, and his half-groats are in the same category. He issued the angel, half-angel, groat, half-groat, penny and half-penny. None of his coins are acquired easily, with the groat and one type of penny, with an S on the breast of the portrait with the lis as the mintmark, are listed as scarce by North. His rule of turmoil lasted less than two years, which has much to do with the scarcity of most of his coins.

When Henry VII became the ruler, a change took place in the coinage. Clearly marking the end of medieval art and the beginning of the Renaissance in the coinage. Henry issued many types of coins, and beside the usual kinds he issued the gold sovereign, ryal, and in silver the testoon, groat and half-groat in profile. These profile coins were of fine silver, engraved by Alexander and Brugsal; the portrait is considered by many to be one of the finest in the coinage of this period. The gold sovereign is a beautiful example of the art. On the obverse the king is seated on a throne of highly ornamental style, while the reverse depicts a large Tudor rose with the royal shield in the center. The silver testoon or shilling was of 144 grains which bore the same designs as the profile groat. The ecclesiastical mints continued to strike coins bearing the personal mark of the dignitaries responsible.

Tower of London

The Tower of London is the most interesting fortress in Great Britain. In fact the Romans had a fortress where part of the Tower is now located. The chronicler Stow states that William the Conqueror built the great White and the Square Tower about the year 1078. A few of the early kings used the Tower as a palace. Henry I (1216-1272) was the next important builder, who built the outer wall and added other buildings and fortifications. In 1278 at least 600 Jews accused of clipping and altering coinage were confined in the Tower. An edict of the reign of Edward III proclaimed that moneys, wherever coined, should be uniform with those of the Tower. A new mintmaster, William de Turnemire was appointed in 1279 for all of England. He came from Marseilles, and brought with him new processes for coining money. The metal was cast into long bars, and blanks were cut from these bars with shears, then heated and hammered into a round shape. After the oxide was removed they were placed between the dies and struck with the hammer.

The London mint was situated in the Treasury Building at Westminster, but in 1300 a new mint was erected in the Tower of London between the inner and outer walls. By the middle of the fourteenth century much of the coinage of the country was concentrated in the Tower mint, although the ecclesiastical mints of Canterbury, York and Durham continued to function intermittently. After the Restoration, rolling mills were set up in the Tower, driven by horse and waterpower, turning out milled instead of hammered coinage.

We can trace here the origin of the law courts, beginning in the Hall Tower, close to the outer Ballium to which there was an entrance to the Royal Palace. The Tower grounds actually sprawls over 26 acres, with the east wall facing the Thames River. The White Tower and clustered buildings occupy the center, with many towers and store-houses surrounding the courtyard.

Conclusion

The constable of the Tower has always been an important personage, with direct communication with the king. On his installation the keys would be delivered to him by the Lord Chamberlain. Tradition claims that Prince Edward V and the Duke of York were murdered in the Bloody Tower near Traitor's Gate, which was originally Watergate. The bodies presumed to be the princes were discovered buried under a stairway leading to the White Tower located in one of the original buildings.

Horace Walpole who was an indefatigable recorder in his own day, took but one plunge into the history of the past with his Historic Doubts on the life and reign of King Richard III, published in 1768. He was a defender of Richard as I have mentioned previously. However, he does list the crimes Richard was accused of and then attempts to prove that he was innocent, or not proven guilty of them. Included were:

Murder of Edward Prince of Wales, son of Henry VI

Murder of Henry VI (presumed slain in the Tower by means of a dagger)

Murder of his brother George, Duke of Clarence

Execution of Rivers, Gray and Vaughan — Duke of Buckingham

Execution of Lord Hastings

Murder of Edward V and his brother

Murder of his own Queen

To which may be added, as they were thrown into the list to blacken him, his intended match with his own niece Elizabeth, the penance of Jane Shore, and his own personal deformities, quoted from Richard III, The Great Debate, edited by Paul M. Kendall

If one follows or adheres closely to the chroniclers, it becomes apparent that Richard was far from being acceptable to the populace. Only by the will of certain noblemen of his faction, and having established all things at London according to his own fancy before proceeding to York, was he able to succeed. He was devious, and could not conceal his hunger for power. His designs of keeping his nephews within his grasp did not make him look like an innocent prince. As Walpole says there is no proof of Richard's guilt, but I would say there are many signs of its presence. The heinous results of his wicked conscience did so gnaw at him every moment, that he lived in continual fear.

Tyrell I believe carried out the orders of Richard and had the princes murdered. He was delivered the keys of the Tower for one night from Sir Robert Brackenbury (who refused the repulsive duty) by order of Richard. This act was done after Richard's coronation, (usurpation of the throne) and as far as he was concerned his nephews were bastards, or so he wanted it believed, and as long as they were alive they interfered with his devious plans.

Henry Tudor landed at Miford Haven on August 7, 1485, with several thousand troops, and soon gathered more adherents. Richard, anticipating an invasion, had taken up a position at Nottingham with twice the force as Henry.

Lord Stanley, who had remained loyal to Richard, or thought it best to appear so (his son was held as a hostage), stayed aloof from Richard with his following. The opposing troops met near the slopes of Ambien Hill. As the battle reached the climax, Lord Stanley decided the issue by favoring Henry Tudor, and closed in with his forces from Richard's flank. Richard who had a chance to flee, probably hesitated, and decided to fight for his crown. Most of his bodyguard was slain, and Richard's end came as he fought in the thick of battle. Henry was crowned on Market Bosworth, the first Tudor monarch who would become an economic and just ruler.

The king is dead, long live the king! With the death of Richard an epoch ended, and Shakespeare tells best why the follies of the past should not be repeated.

Abate the edge of traitors, gracious Lord,
That would reduce these bloody days again,
And make poor England weep in streams of blood!
Let them not live to taste this land's increase,
That would with treason wound this fair land's peace!
Now civil wounds are stopp'd, peace lives again;
That she may long live here, God say amen!

"The-buck-stops-here!" Department...

California's always-on-the-go Bill Wisslead recently drove some 30 miles through a blinding rain one Friday night to deliver me to an anniversary meeting of the Whittier Coin Club to meet some long-time friends . . . and some new ones! If there's a numismatic decoration for bravery beyond the call of duty, I nominate Bill! (Of course, I wasn't scared . . . I just kept my eyes closed.)

At Whittier I learned of a worthy campaign by the Israel Numismatic Society of San Gabriel Valley of California. That organization has started a living memorial to one whom I counted among my very closest friends, Maury Gould, whom we lost last November 29.

That living memorial is to be a grove of 1,000 trees to be planted in Israel this coming May, marked "A Living Memorial to Our Dear Friend, Maurice M. Gould."

The cost of buying and planting the grove is U.S. $3,000 . . . $3 a tree. If you'd like to remember Maury in this unusual and permanent way, you may buy one tree or five or ten or any number, and your help will be reported to Maury's still very grief-stricken widow Jean (unless you prefer your gift to remain anonymous). Your check should be made payable to "Jewish National Fund" for, as I say, one tree or more, and mailed to Mr. Nate Bromberg, 15540 East Lambert Road, Whittier, CA 90604, USA.

There's only one ANACS!

Now in its fifth year of operation, ANA's Certification Service (ANACS), for the sake of efficiency and economy, now is located at 818 North Cascade Avenue, Colorado Springs, 80903.

ANACS became the world's first authenticating laboratory for coins outside the Mint, serving the worldwide private sector. And an ANACS certificate quickly became recognized as the official word as to a coin's genuineness.

Not only does ANACS report to you if your coin is genuine, but each genuine coin immediately has its own pedigree started, a registered serial number which forevermore will accompany that genuine coin, and a so-numbered certificate is issued. From time to time . . . since the day ANACS introduced its novel certification service . . . private offers of an authentication service have sprung up, but ANACS remains the one and only such service recognized as numismatically official.

ANACS has a card index file containing detailed sketches and micrographs of the microscopic tell-tale points on hundreds and hundreds of different counterfeits, like those cards kept on file in the U.S. Mint Laboratory from the Mint's years and years of unmasking counterfeits of U.S.A. coins. Those record cards enable ANACS to prove in court that such-and-such a coin is a fake.

The value to you of an ANACS official certificate for your coin is shown when a coin with its ANACS certificate usually will bring a noticeably higher price at a sale than would that same coin if it never had been issued an officially recognized ANACS certificate!

Sincerely,

Editor's Note: In a tradition reminiscent of when the ANA published convention papers, the editorial department has adopted the policy of publishing those presentations given at the annual ANA convention Educational Forum which are adaptable for publication. This article by Sheldon S. Carroll records nearly verbatim his lecture given August 26th at the 85th ANA Anniversary Convention.

It is a great pleasure to be able to participate in any educational forum of the American Numismatic Association but especially this one, and it is a great honor to appear on the same platform with three such distinguished and internationally respected numismatists.

My presence here today is, in a sense, a return appearance. The last time that the Annual Convention of the ANA was held in New York was in 1952, twenty-four years ago. Some of the older ones here may recall that I was the guest speaker at the annual banquet on that occasion. I was there at the invitation of my good friend the late Colonel Joe Moss who was your president at that time. During the intervening twenty-four years, the ANA has grown bigger and better while I have just grown older.

I have personal reasons for being pleased at having been invited to come here to join you in celebrating the American Bicentennial. I scarcely need to remind any student of American history that one of the signers of the American Declaration of Independence was another Carroll, Charles Carroll of Carrollton. Among the many distinguished men who signed that historic document Charles Carroll had a number of distinctions. He was the most influential Catholic in all of the American Colonies, he was the wealthiest of all the signers, he was the only one of the signers to sign with both his name and address, Charles Carroll of Carrollton, and he outlived all of the other signers, living to the ripe old age of ninety-five.

Charles Carroll is well known to Canadians because he accompanied Benjamin Franklin to Montreal in their unsuccessful attempt to persuade Canada to become the 14th member of the Union. While in Montreal, Franklin and Carroll lived in the Chateau de Ramezay, one of the most historic buildings in North America and now the home of the Antiquarian and Numismatic Society of Montreal. Before his death Carroll presented to the City of New York a unique copy of the Declaration of Independence signed by him and countersigned by President John Quincy Adams. I have not been able to learn of the present location of that document and I would be interested to hear if any of you know of it.

The Carroll family in Maryland was a very large one at the time of the American Revolution and not all of them were in favor of making the break with Britain. One of these was Joseph Carroll, a cousin of Charles Carroll. Joseph Carroll served during the Revolutionary War in a British regiment called the Maryland Loyalists. After the successful or unsuccessful (depending which side you were on) termination of that conflict he fled to New Brunswick and later moved to Upper Canada. Joseph Carroll was my great, great, great grandfather. That explains how I am able to come down here from Canada nearly two hundred years later to help you celebrate your Bicentennial and to assure you that there are no longer any hard feelings.

Canada and the United States can be regarded as numismatic cousins. Our people came from the same blood stocks, they had similar backgrounds and had similar hopes and aspirations. Our nations have developed side by side on the North American continent and this development has, to a large extent, been along parallel paths. It is therefore not surprising that there should be many similarities as well as some differences in both the metallic and the paper currencies of those British Colonies in America which became the United States and those French and British Colonies which eventually became the Dominion of Canada. Although both regions produced an indigenous paper currency, the colonies to the north produced no metallic coinage of their own, while several of the colonies to the south had their own copper and in at least two cases their own silver coinage.

The first successful European settlement in what is now Canada was established by the Frenchmen, De Monts and Champlain, in 1604 at Annapolis Royal on the Bay of Fundy coast of what is now Nova Scotia. This was the beginning of the French colony of Acadia which included all of what we know today as the Provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. The French strengthened their claim to this part of the continent by beginning the construction of the great fortress of Louisbourg in 1713 on Cape Breton Island, which they called Ile Royale. In 1719 the French established their first settlement in Prince Edward Island which they called Ile St. Jean. The English strengthened their position in Nova Scotia by the founding of Halifax in 1749. During the period under discussion New Brunswick was a part of Nova Scotia. The first permanent European settlement in Newfoundland was established when Saint John's was founded in 1610. The first European settlement on the St. Lawrence River was founded at Quebec by Champlain in 1608. This was the beginning of New France.

The period under consideration at the present time is the period from 1604 to 1776. The area includes the four French colonies of New France, Acadia, Ile St. Jean and Ile Royale and the three English colonies of Nova Scotia (which included New Brunswick), Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland. All of these colonies suffered from the same problem of a chronic shortage of a metallic currency. All of them had to make do with a mixture of coins brought out from the mother country supplemented by whatever foreign coins came their way through trade. It was only in New France, Acadia and Nova Scotia that there were developments of particular interest to numismatists and chief among these was New France.

New France was born when Samuel de Champlain founded Quebec in 1608. The little colony grew slowly but steadily. Trois-Rivieres or Three Rivers was founded in 1634 and Montreal in 1642. Fifty years after the founding of Quebec, New France had a population of over 3,000 and ten years later this had grown to over 5,000. The population was made up of fur traders, farmers, fishermen, soldiers, merchants, priests and government officials. At that time, France, like many other European countries, regarded its overseas colonies mainly as a source of revenue and a market for its manufactured goods. It was the policy to give the colonies as little autonomy as possible and to keep them entirely dependent on the mother country. Trade between New France and the British colonies to the south was forbidden but this edict was frequently circumvented. A steady increase in the trade and commerce of New France accentuated the shortage of coins in the little colony. Each spring when the supply ships arrived from France they brought with them sufficient coins to pay the troops and to pay for the furs and other local products. When the supply ships returned to France in the fall they took back most of these coins to pay for taxes and the manufactured goods that New France required in ever increasing quantities.

It is of interest to numismatists to know what kind of French coins were brought to the New World during this period. It is quite probable that every French coin issued from the late 1500's to the fall of Quebec in 1759 found its way to New France. These would include coins of copper, billon, silver and gold.

The French monetary system at this time was based on a livre of twenty sols or sous, each of twelve deniers. This was parallel to the English system of a pound of twenty shillings, each of twelve pence. It is interesting to note that the abbreviations for these three denominations in both languages was L, s, d. Originally the French livre was equivalent in value to a pound of silver but its value had fallen steadily through the years until in the 17th century it was worth not much more than an English shilling.

It would serve no purpose in this survey to list in detail all of the many denominations and issues of French coins that probably circulated in Canada as it would constitute merely a catalogue of the coins of metropolitan France during the reigns of Henri III to Louis XV. Instead we will concentrate on those coins of the regular issues which are known to have been shipped in quantity to the French Colonies in North America and those coins which were specifically struck for colonial use.

During the first fifty years of New France and Acadia a succession of colonial officials appealed to the authorities in France to take some action to alleviate the critical shortage of coins in those colonies. At the same time colonial officials in the English colonies to the south were making similar appeals to England to do something about a similar shortage in those colonies. The colonists of Massachusetts were the first to lose patience and take matters into their own hands. In 1652 the General Court of Massachusetts ordered the first metallic currency to be struck in the English Americas — the New England shilling, sixpence and threepence. This issue was followed by the willow tree coinage beginning in 1653, the oak tree coinage beginning in 1660 and the pine tree coinage from 1667 - 1682. Lord Baltimore, the Lord Proprietor of Maryland, authorized a similar series of coins in 1658. Unlike the coins of Massachusetts, which were struck in Boston, the Maryland coinage was struck in England. The issue consisted of shillings, sixpences, groats or fourpences, in silver, and pennies in copper. New Jersey received an infusion of small change in 1681 when Mark Newby brought out from Dublin a quantity of Irish half-pennies bearing the image of St. Patrick. These were authorized in 1682 by the General Assembly to pass as legal tender.

Louis XIV of France, known as the Sun King, reacted slowly to the colonial pleas but to his credit he did act. In 1670 he signed an edict authorizing the issue of 40,000 15 sols pieces and 200,000 5 sols pieces, both in silver, to be struck at Paris and a quantity of 2 deniers pieces in copper to be struck at Nantes. These coins were authorized for use in New France, Acadia, the French settlements in Newfoundland, and the French West Indies.

The order for striking the copper coins was not carried out and only a single pattern piece struck at Paris is known today. It is in the collection of the American Numismatic Society. The two silver pieces are both of the same design and quite handsome coins, especially the larger one. They bear on their obverse the bust of Louis XIV facing right and on the reverse a crowned shield bearing three fleur de lis. The reverse legend reads GLORIAM REGNI TUI DICENT which can be translated as "They shall speak of the Glory of Thy Kingdom," referring of course to the illustrious Louis XIV. This inscription was not used on any of the coins of metropolitan France and it is from this inscription that these coins obtained one of their popular names, "the Gloriam Regni coinage." The exact quantity that was shipped to France and Acadia is not known but we do know that they quickly disappeared from circulation in spite of an edict of 1672 which increased their value by one third. These were the only silver coins issued specifically for use in the French colonies in America. It is difficult to determine the purchasing power of these coins in those days, but we do know that in 1645 bread sold in Quebec at 15 sols per loaf and a cord of firewood brought 10 sols.

Now I would like to mention one of the great mysteries of Canadian numismatics. On January 13, 1683, the Superior Council of Quebec issued a decree ordering that all Spanish dollars in circulation be stamped with a fleur-de-lys and that they would pass for 4 livres. Deficiencies in weight were to be shown by an additional countermark of a Roman numeral I, II, III or IV indicating that they were $6\frac{1}{4}$, $12\frac{1}{2}$, $18\frac{3}{4}$ or 25% underweight. What became of these coins is not known. We do know that not a single example has been found by numismatists. Perhaps the order was never carried out. Perhaps the coins were all redeemed and melted down. Perhaps they were all exported and lost. Perhaps we shall never know.

As we have seen, the copper double denier of 1670 was never issued. Forty-seven years later, in 1717, Louis XV authorized copper coins of 6 and 12 deniers to be struck at Perpignan. Among the colonies where they were to circulate specific mention is made of Canada, Ile Royale and Louisiana. Because of the poor quality of the copper the order could not be carried out in 1717, nor in 1720 when a second attempt was made. It is doubtful if any of the few pieces struck ever reached the French colonies in America. Today they are of very great rarity. Thus we find that the first two efforts by France to provide a copper coinage for her colonies came to naught.

A third and final effort was made in 1721 when Louis XV again authorized the striking of copper coins for colonial use. In order to avoid previous difficulties with the quality of the copper, the blanks were imported from Sweden. Copper pieces of 9 deniers were struck at Rouen in 1721 bearing the mint mark B and at La Rochelle in 1721 and 1722 bearing the mint mark H. Considerable quantities of these coins were shipped to the French colonies in America, including both New France and Louisiana. In both of these colonies the coins were not well received and the bulk of those which had been shipped to Quebec were returned to France in 1726. Only a little over 8,000 pieces were actually put into circulation in New France.

During the latter part of the 17th and the early part of the 18th centuries the government of France had many problems to contend with and it is doubtful if the provision of copper coins for the colonies had a very high priority. Abortive efforts were made over a period of fifty years and it is ironical that when copper coins were eventually produced satisfactorily and in quantity, it turned out that they found little acceptance in the colonies. The frugal colonists preferred silver coins or billon coins which looked somewhat like silver.

While France was struggling with the problem of copper coins for her colonies, England was making half-hearted efforts to do the same for her colonies in America. In order to show just how half-hearted these efforts were, I would like to refer to some sunken treasure which was found off the coast of Cape Breton Island in Nova Scotia in 1969. This treasure was recovered from the wreck of a British warship, H.M.S. Feversham, which sank in 1711. As this ship had been based in a New England port for some time the hoard represented a cross section of the coins which probably circulated in the English colonies in North America at that time. As the quantity of coins was not large it is conjectured that they represented the cash carried by the captain of the ship. The group of coins in the hoard consisted of 180 Spanish-American silver pieces, 2 English coins, 6 Dutch coins and 30 Massachusetts pine tree shillings.

Now let us look at some of the half-hearted English efforts to supply the colonies with small change. Hibernia halfpennies and farthings which had been struck from 1722 to 1724 for use in Ireland, and had proven to be unpopular there, were shipped across the Atlantic. From 1722 to 1724, William Wood of London was granted the right to coin two pence, penny and halfpenny pieces for the colonies. These pieces, known as the Rosa Americana coins, proved to be highly unpopular, and one colony, Massachusetts Bay, countered by issuing its own small change printed on parchment. A few years later Connecticut had its own copper coinage in the form of pieces coined by Dr. Samuel Higley and later by his brother John from their own copper mine. In 1773 an issue of copper halfpennies was authorized for Virginia. A number of coins and tokens of various types were introduced into the colonies and served as small change. Examples are the Elephant tokens of Carolina and New England, the Pitt tokens, the Chalmers tokens, and a number of others.

This finishes our survey of the copper and silver coins produced for use in the French colonies in America and produced for or originating in the English colonies in America. Just before we leave completely some reference should be made to the John Law coinage which is sometimes linked to the French colonies in America. These coins were issued from 1719 to 1721 when the finances of France had been entrusted to a Scotsman by the name of John Law. The copper was authorized by an edict of 1719 and the gold and silver by an edict of 1720. The John Law coinage was authorized for use in France and her colonies, but as the export of coins in large quantities could only be done with written authority it can be seen that these coins were primarily for use in France. While some undoubtedly did find their way to New France, Acadia, Ile St. Jean, Ile Royal and Louisiana, no record has been found to show that quantities were shipped to these colonies.

John Law 1720 France ten sols

We still have to deal with one large and important type of coinage which formed a considerable part of the circulating medium in the French colonies but which was not found at all in the English coinage. This was the billon coinage made of an alloy of roughly one fifth silver and the balance copper. It had been used in France from the 11th century.

During the period under consideration six different types of billon coins circulated in New France and at times in others of the French colonies in America. Firstly, in 1640 all old douzains in circulation in France were called in and countermarked with a fleur-de-lys in an oval and were ordered to pass at 15 deniers. Although a sol or sou normally equalled 12 deniers these pieces came to be called a sol of 15 deniers and since they were stamped or marked they were called a "sou marqué," a name which was applied to later issues even though they varied in value. These pieces must have been known in New France because an edict of 1672 raised their value in that colony from 15 to 20 deniers. Secondly, at the same time the French 15 deniers piece of 1641 was also increased in value by one-third in New France. Thirdly, a new douzain was issued in France in 1658 and a quantity was shipped to Quebec in 1662 where it was valued at first at 24 deniers but in later years its value was changed three times. Fourthly, a piece of 15 deniers was issued first in 1692 and continued to 1698. Like its predecessors it was revalued several times. The 5th sou marqué, was the mousquetaire of 30 deniers, issued from 1709 to 1713. It soared in value to 60 deniers during the period of "John Law" inflation but finally settled at 18 deniers, the same as all previous sou marqués.

Now we come to the 6th and last type of billon coin known in the French colonies by the name "sou marque." These were the pieces of 24 deniers issued from 1738 - 1764. These are the pieces listed in Breton's catalogue which have been known to collectors on this continent for the last century as "billon marqués." When all other sous marqué were reduced in value in 1744 to 18 deniers this piece was the only billon coin that retained its original value of 24 deniers. Large quantities of these coins were shipped to New France and Acadia from time to time and they were plentiful at the time of the fall of Quebec in 1759. Although no more sou marqué were shipped to Canada after 1760, they continued to be struck for other French colonies in North America. New France passed to Britain by the Treaty of Paris in 1763. In 1764 the British military government at Quebec valued the sou marques at a farthing a piece, evidently valuing the coin by its size rather than its metallic content.

We now turn to consideration of paper currency on this continent. Paper money had been invented by the Chinese and was in use when that country was visited by Marco Polo in the fourteenth century. The use of paper money in Europe developed from the receipts given by goldsmiths to citizens who deposited gold and silver with them for safekeeping. The first banknotes, as we know them, were issued by the Stockholm Bank in Sweden in 1661, but paper money was not commonly accepted until at least a century later.

In spite of the half-hearted efforts of the French government to supply coins of silver, copper and billon for New France, Acadia and Louisiana, there was never a sufficient supply of small change in the colonies, particularly during the winter months. Finally, in 1685, Jacques de Meulles, the Intendant of New France, faced with the necessity of paying the troops, turned in desperation to the issue of paper money or promises to pay later. In order to carry out his plan he had to overcome two obstacles — there were no printing presses in French Canada and the only available supply of paper was ordinary writing paper, totally unsuitable for paper money. He struck on an expedient that resulted in a type of paper money that has made history. In those days card playing was one of the most common ways of passing leisure hours and playing cards were relatively plentiful in the colony. Playing cards were made to be handled repeatedly and at the time were made with plain reverses. De Meulles had the happy thought of using the blank reverses of playing cards on which to create his paper money.

The first series of playing card money was issued in three denominations: four livres written on a whole card, two livres on half a card and 15 sols on a quarter card. He had his clerk of the treasury inscribe on each a "bon" or statement showing that the card was good for four livres, two livres, etc. These he signed and sealed in wax with his own seal, while the clerk of the treasury countersigned them as they were issued. Later issues were signed by the Governor as well. Because of the lack of space the quarter cards were frequently signed with just an initial instead of the full name. These cards circulated in the colony during the winter months and were redeemed in the spring when the ships arrived from Franie bringing a fresh supply of coins. Keeping cards beyond the announced redemption date was a crime which was severely punished.

Simulated New France Playing Card Money

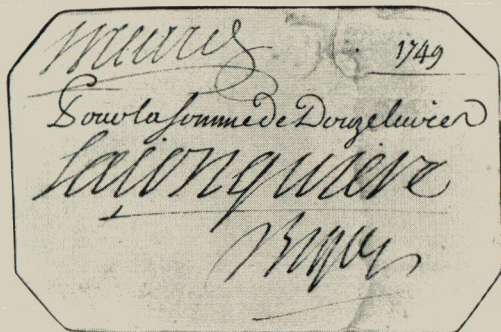

The measure adopted by de Meulles brought only temporary relief. Again and again the need for card money arose and the need was met in the same manner by successive Intendants and Governors. Only the early issues were made from playing cards, for the later issues plain white cards were used. This was a sensible economy measure because in those days, before the invention of color printing, playing cards were painted by hand and what sense was there in printing and coloring hearts, diamonds, spades and clubs on cards which were to be used for another purpose.

The Governor and Intendant of New France did not have the authority to issue paper money, or money of any kind for that matter. Nevertheless, although the King of France disapproved of the issue of card money, he did not forbid it. Issue followed issue, each new issue replacing the previous issue, and because the laws concerning redemption were so severely enforced, not a single specimen is known today of the first eight issues and these include those early issues made from playing cards. The amount of card money in circulation eventually became very great, so much so that the redemption of the later issues had to be postponed from year to year.

1733 New France Card Money, 24 livres

The penalties for counterfeiting card money were severe and from our viewpoint even bizarre. Robert Ripley of Believe-It-or-Not fame records that Camille Ledoux of Quebec was sentenced to have his arms tied behind his back for three years, from 1702 to 1705, for having forged a piece of playing card money. What had begun as an emergency measure, without Royal approval, finally came to be accepted in Paris. This is confirmed by a letter dated 1734 from the home government to the Governor of Louisiana stating that card money had been in use in New France since 1729 and had given the greatest satisfaction there.

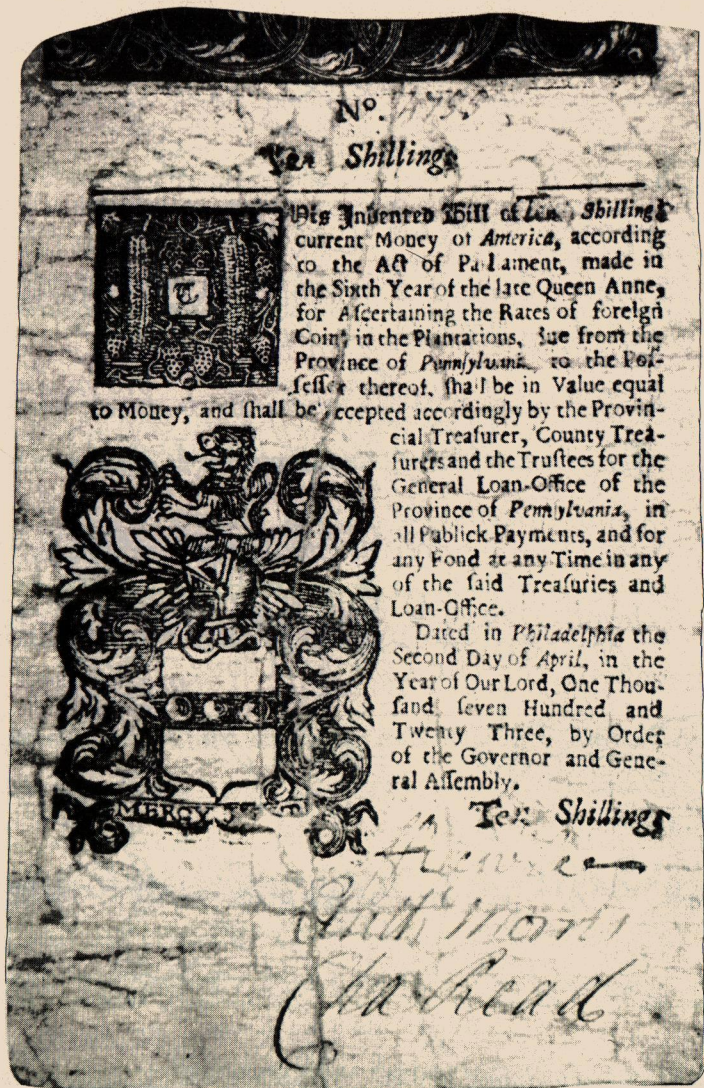

From 1685 to 1760 there were no less than 22 issues of card money running into the equivalent of many millions of dollars. In the latter part of this period the supply of card money was supplemented by the issue of ordonnances which were notes drawn on the Treasury of Quebec. These were printed on paper and measured approximately 4" x 6". We are inclined to think of this use of card money and colonial ordonnances as being only a temporary expedient but this is not the case. For a period of 75 years or the equivalent of 2 1/2 generations, the economy of this colony functioned to a very large extent on locally produced paper money. It is of considerable interest to historians, economists and numismatists alike that the issue of card money by Jacques de Meulles in 1685 was the first use of paper money in the Western Hemisphere and this occurred at a time when the use of paper money was not yet common or widespread in Europe.

After the fall of New France, the French Government repudiated the card money and the many millions of dollars worth of ordonnances which were outstanding. After protracted negotiations the British Government voted a small sum and a considerable number of the cards were redeemed but only at 25% of their value. As a result, many of the inhabitants of New France lost 75% of their savings. This action destroyed the faith of French-Canadians in paper money for several generations.

The use of card money was not confined to New France. In 1703, Capt. de Brouillan who was in command of Acadia issued card money for use in that colony. He justified this action by stating that the funds which had been supplied to him were insufficient and that in issuing card money he was following the example of French Canada. The reaction of the French King was immediate and severe. De Brouillan was ordered to withdraw the card money at once. In 1706 De Goutin, in desperation, issued card money to the value of 6,000 livres but was ordered to withdraw it immediately and was informed that His followed by Rhode Island in 1710, North Carolina in 1712, Delaware and Pennsylvania in 1723, Maryland in 1733, Georgia in 1735, and Virginia not until 1755.

And so we see that the North American colonists who were later to become Americans and those who were later to become Canadians faced similar problems in the New World which they met in similar ways. Faced with unsympathetic authorities in their mother countries they tried to work out their own solutions to local problems.

In closing I would like to add a short footnote to Canadian numismatic history. In the early part of the 19th century the supply of small change was so inadequate in both Upper and Lower Canada (now Ontario and Quebec) that almost any round piece of metal could be passed as a coin. One expedient was to take the metal buttons from military uniforms, remove the shank, flatten them out and pass them as halfpennies. It can be said that perhaps Canada is the only country in the world whose economic system was founded, in part at least, on playing cards and military buttons.

Fleischmann Joins Relocated ANACS Staff

Edward J. Fleischmann, editor of Coin World's "Collector Clearinghouse" and instructor in counterfeit detection at ANA's Summer Seminar, has been selected by ANA executive vice president Edward C. Rochette to join the staff of ANA's Certification Service as an authenticator. Fleischmann arrived at ANACS's new location at ANA headquarters in Colorado Springs October 12th after a long drive from Sidney, Ohio to begin looking for a new home and prepare for the arrival of ANACS staff and material from Washington, D.C.

As an instructor at previous ANA summer seminars, Ed Fleischmann has helped many students become acquainted with methods for detecting counterfeit coins. At far left, Ed accepts his certificate of appreciation from Chuck Hoskins (c), then ANACS director, and Ed Rochette, ANA executive vice president, for his participation in the 1976 seminar.

Pleased about his choice, Ed Rochette commented that "Ed Fleischmann is particularly well qualified as an authenticator because of the experience he gained while on the Coin World Clearinghouse staff in Sidney, Ohio, even before ANACS became a reality in 1972."

Fleischmann originates from Wisconsin where he attended school in Medford and gained his background for technical work of a precision nature in Oak Creek where he was employed in a supervisory capacity by the AC Electronics Division of General Motors Corps. AC Electronics designed the guidance system that put men on the moon. This fascination and talent for detail continued into Fleischmann's numismatic interests as he became a known specialist in numismatic errors, publishing his highly recognized "Register of Numismatic Errors" under the sponsorship of the Collectors of Numismatic Errors, Inc.

Coin World welcomed Fleischmann to their staff in 1969, and there his first hand knowledge of coins and general numismatics continued to expand. His affiliations have grown to include a wide range of local, regional, and national coin clubs, many of which he has served in an official capacity. These organizations and more have enjoyed Fleischmann as a guest speaker, broadening their members' awareness of counterfeit characteristics thanks to this acknowledged authority. Many an author has also sought out this man to critique the technical accuracy of those parts of their manuscripts which involve coins and coining techniques.

Fleischmann's wife Marilyn and three of his five boys, Brian, 15, Kevin, 13, and Craig, 10, will be joining him soon at their new home in Colorado Springs. His two oldest sons, Douglas, 19 and Bruce, 18, are sophomore and freshman students at the University of Cincinnati and Bowling Green State University in Ohio.

Fleischmann said he didn't have too much trouble "selling" his family on Colorado. Both he and his wife have relatives in the Mountain State and while Ed was attending the ANA Summer Seminar in 1975, his wife, who was visiting family in Denver, commented to her husband, "There are only two places you can move me ahead of time without asking, Colorado or Wisconsin."

Well, Ed, we at the ANA aim to please, and welcome you and your family to the ANA staff and the Pikes Peak region.

Virgin Islands Bicentennial Medal

The U.S. Virgin Islands Bicentennial Commission has commemorated the 200th anniversary of the nation and the 50th anniversary of U.S. citizenship for the inhabitants of the islands with the release of an official bicentennial medal.

Designed by Calvin Massey, Morristown, N.J., the obverse of the medal features a stylized sun superimposed upon scenes of the islands, famous tourist attractions — windmills, fishing, boating, beaches and tropical flora. The reverse depicts the logo of the U.S. Virgin Islands Bicentennial Commission.

The U.S. Virgin Islands, discovered by Columbus on his second voyage to America in 1493, are composed of three principal islands, St. Thomas, St. Croix and St. John, and some 50 islets in the Lesser Antilles of the West Indies. Ruled at various times under the flags of Spain, England, France, Holland and Denmark, the islands, nevertheless, abolished slavery in 1848 — long before the U.S. mainland. In 1867 the U.S. began negotiations to acquire the islands, then the Danish West Indies, for the defense of the Panama Canal and Puerto Rico. But the purchase from Denmark for $25 million wasn't completed until 1917. U.S. citizenship was granted in 1927.

Medals are available in five editions: 18 kt. gold 1 inch medal limited to 250 numbered specimens priced at $250; .999 silver 2 1/2 inch antique finish medal limited to 2500 numbered pieces priced at $80; an edition limited to 5000 proof quality .999 silver 1 1/2 inch medals for $25; a 2 1/2 inch high relief antique bronze edition serially numbered and priced at $12.50, and finally a 1 1/2 inch coin relief medal for $3. The latter two additions are available by reservations through Dec. 31, 1976.

All royalties from the sale of the medal will be used to help restore Ft. Frederick, on St. Croix, and to develop a library documenting the islands' early culture and customs. Inquiries and orders should be directed to the official medalists, Medallion Art Company, Old Ridgebury Rd., Danbury, CT 06810. Orders should include $1.50 for insurance, postage and handling.

NEW YORK

Big Apple Convention Largest Ever

The harried and tense business of supervising an ever growing association shows in the serious expressions of these ANA officials at the annual Board of Governors meeting held during the ANA convention.

Only a small portion of the bourse area.

by David L. Ganz, LM 1072

They came in droves to take a bite of the Big Apple.

More than 21,000 people — the most that ever attended a coin convention — registered for the 85th Anniversary Convention of the American Numismatic Association, held at New York City's Americana Hotel in the heart of midtown Manhattan this past August 24-29. Billed by the convention committee as the "biggest and best" ANA convention ever held, all expectations were shattered as record after record fell before one of the most enthusiastic crowds in memory.

Joe Frantz, outstanding club representative for 1976, gets into the "Spirit of '76" as he invites ANA members at the ANA convention to "Ye Olde Time Towne Meeting."

This was the ANA's first visit to New York City in 24 years. The last time that the organization came to the Big Apple was in 1952. That year, there were 24 dealer bourse tables, 440 registered members who attended, and a mammoth auction sale termed "the biggest sale since Jenks" in 1921, which had nearly 4,900 lots.

Where the action is . . . the bourse floor of the ANA New York Convention where over 200 dealers actively bought and sold a gamut of numismatic material. Shown here are dealer Richard Margolis of Teaneck, N.J. (l.) discussing an interesting item with a customer.

ANA president Virgil Hancock (standing) and the ANA board of governors answer questions.

In the two dozen years since 1952, the ANA has grown dramatically. Besides the obvious difference in convention attendance — 440 people against 21,900 registered individuals — there were also 200 dealers compared to 24 on the bourse floor participating in the largest convention sales area ever put together in the world of coins. Spread out in the spacious 22,000 square foot Imperial Ballroom, the 200 dealers represented virtually every state in the union and many foreign countries. More than half a dozen of the dealers, interestingly enough, also had bourse space at the 61st Anniversary Convention of the old Hotel Statler in 1952.

Wall-to-wall ANA members attending the "Olde Time Towne Meeting."

Across from the Imperial Ballroom were Royal Ballrooms A and B, site of the viewing room for auction lots, the auction sale itself, and the official ANA meeting room. The pounding of the gavel in Royal A saw extensive use throughout the ANA convention. For the auction, it resulted in the setting of many new price records.

For the 1976 ANA convention sale, Stack's created a catalogue that came close to being the size of a telephone book. Totalling 448 pages in length, containing 4,178 lots, and weighing 2.4 pounds, the catalog contained choice specimens from individual collectors as well as the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and the Massachusetts Historical Society. From American patterns, to ancient gold and silver, nearly all numismatic interests were represented in the auction.

At the 1952 ANA convention, a substantially larger sale was held. There were close to 5,000 lots in six sessions that attracted 800 bid sheets and 342 floor bidders. Prices then included $1,500 for an original Panama Pacific gold and silver set, and a grand total of $132,558.65. Some 24 years later, a similar Panama Pacific set realized $28,000 and a single lot — containing four Stellas — brought nearly twice the total prices realized of the entire 1952 ANA convention auction sale. Bidders at the 1976 ANA convention sale numbered "several thousand" according to Stack's, and any visit to the floor showed just how active the auction mart was though a substantial number of rarities also went to mail bidders.

Exhibits at the 1952 ANA convention were interesting, if not small in size. The 1976 ANA convention had an entirely separate exhibit area — the 30,000 square foot Albert Hall, familiar to New York coin buffs as the site for many local shows when bourse and exhibit areas are mixed there. In excess of 650 cases by more than 200 exhibitors were on display — another ANA record chalked up by the New York convention committee and exhibit chairman Robert Hawes. Displays were in sixteen topical areas (as defined by the rules), and the exhibits were viewed by thousands of people over the course of the week-long convention.

Added to the display cases were several live exhibits, as well as those of governmental and international agencies. The Bureau of Engraving & Printing brought in its popular paper money printing exhibit, where a live demonstration of the process of printing money was periodically done. Various private mints agreed to sponsor a sculptor during each of the exhibit days, to allow collectors and visitors to see the actual manufacturing process of a medal from its inception.

Other exhibits included the United Nations Food & Agriculture Organization, which sent medals officer Barbara Simms all the way from Rome to show the more than 200 international coin issues with the "Grow More Food" theme that FAO has sponsored, as well as their growing program in the medallic art field. From Washington, the Bureau of the Mint showed its bicentennial wares and a film exhibit, the South African Krugerrand was exhibited in a tank guarded by four (and later three) piranha, and the United States Postal Service supplied stamps and an official "ANA Station" cancellation designed by governor Mort Reed.

Interest in the convention, the auction, exhibits, and bourse floor were not limited to ANA members. A sizeable press contingent also attended, including not only the numismatic media, but also local and national newspapers, radio, and television. Shepherding the press corps around were the ANA national publicity chairman Richard Peiper, local convention publicity chairman John Gabriel, and the 1976 convention national publicity director David Ganz.

All three major television networks — ABC, NBC, and CBS — did broadcasts on the convention. The Time-Life stations also did a major feature. The Associated Press and United Press International also did features on the economic side of coin collecting, as did the New York Times, the New York Daily News, and the New York Post — the three dailies of the Big Apple.

While the press covered the bright side of the bourse and auction floors, there were many other aspects of the convention that were beyond their scope — the fraternal aspects that help make the ANA convention what it truly is — the largest gathering of coin collectors in the world who meet for educational, social, and commercial purposes in a combined setting. Behind all the success of the convention was more than two years of hard work by the local committee headed by Jackson Chase Storm, the general chairman. Aided by assistant chairmen Vincent Alones and Eugene Schmid, honorary chairman Morris Bram, and two dozen committee chairmen and their hardworking crews, the hard task of scheduling dozens of events and making them all come off "without a hitch" worked to everyone's mutual satisfaction.

Political Overtones

Throughout the week-long convention, there were also the non-social aspects of the ANA brought forth — the "political" side of association politics that saw two days of stormy board meetings, the decision to move the association's Authentication and Certification Service to Colorado Springs, and the holding of the first open "Town Meeting" in ANA history.

If the numismatic press has been critical of the way the two days of board meetings prior to the ANA convention were held, the interesting observation may be made that at least it was all done in the open — with the press able to witness the board of governors in deliberation. As an attendee at those meetings, it is not difficult to attest that the discussions were boisterous, and at times, perhaps heated. But it is also fair to state, without reaching into the recesses of the minds of the governors, that each attempted to voice opinions, and ultimately to vote, in a manner that they thought would ultimately benefit the association.

For the membership, however, perhaps the most exciting time was the "Olde Time Town Meeting," held on convention Wednesday, August 25, at 11 a.m. in the Royal A ballroom. Besides the reports given by Harold Don Allen on education, John Jay Pittman on finances, and Abe Kosoff on grading, there were numerous questions from the floor that brought to a head some interesting questions as to the future of the association.

Without attempting to recap them all, which is not possible for space and time considerations, there were a number of questions about the newly proposed grading program presented by Kosoff, proposals that the ANA convention be held twice each year — one on the West Coast, the other in the East, inquiries about the lack of financial data available for the convention, and interchanges concerning the young numismatist program.

The interchanges between the members of the board and the audience were robust, and the experience satisfying to most of the people involved. The big losers at the event were Paul R. Whitnah and David Ganz, who had the task of handling microphones that the audience used to address the board. There were only two amplifying units, and both men found it difficult to satisfy the demand of all those wishing to speak.

Grading proposal

Most talked about following the town meeting, and for the balance of the convention, was the proposal for an ANA grading board, and standards to be set for the conditions of United States coins. Veteran professional numismatist A. Kosoff was given the task of formulating plans for such a program by president Virgil Hancock, and he delivered the final report at the convention.

Details are not yet exacting or specific, but Western Publishing (Whitman division) will do the composition and editorial work required, based on standards given by the ANA, and sometime next year a final product will be available for sale to collectors and dealers. "I don't expect that everyone will be happy with every aspect," Kosoff said, but he made it plain that he hoped for industry-wide acceptance, subject of course to modifications as it becomes necessary.

Price of the book will be in the $5 to $6 range, with a "very minimal" profit accruing to Whitman. Since the advance production costs and printing will cost the publishing company a "six-figure" amount as "front" money, the ANA and its membership appear to be getting something of a bargain. According to Kenneth E. Bressett, manager of the Whitman hobby division, the approach will be one that utilizes drawings. Kosoff explains that "after extensive testing, we were not able to satisfactorily use photographs" for the grading standards that ANA wishes to set up. Key highlights of the grading proposals include the use of the term MS-70 "only to a coin that was a perfect strike from a perfect die on a perfect planchet," with the balance of the Sheldon terminology largely retained though modified for applicability to other series of coins.

Convention Tuesday

While the ANA convention actually began for many the weekend before the August 24 opening — numerous collectors and their families arrived early to savor the sights of New York City — the official opening did not take place until Martin F. Kortjohn, ANA president 33 years ago, cuts a ribbon of paper money officially opening the record breaking 1976 convention. Jackson C. Storm, convention general chairman, and Mrs. Kortjohn look on. Kortjohn was also the general chairman of the last New York City convention in 1952.

11 a.m. on Tuesday. Dealers rushed to complete the final setting up process, shifting some of the tables from the preceeding day's Professional Numismatists Guild bourse, and making rearrangements. In the exhibit area, Robert and Dee Hawes made last minute efforts to see that the displays were in their proper place.

Some collectors were up early that morning to take the tour of the New York Stock Exchange. Others wanted to take advantage of the opportunity to view the American Numismatic Society's cabinet. All week long, the ANS opened its museum area to ANA guests, giving them a rare, behind-the-scenes look not only at the extensive exhibits on display (featuring bicentennial monies), but also the vault area. The morning busload on Tuesday left at 9:15 a.m. for the thrill of any numismatic lifetime. In the afternoon, another bus would go up to Audubon Terrace and ANS headquarters. Each day thereafter, the process would be repeated. The only people disappointed were those unable to go because of their own hectic schedules.

At 11 a.m. sharp, the official ribbon cutting ceremonies began at the door to the bourse area. Present to cut the ribbon was an old friend to many collectors, a former member of the ANA official family, the general chairman of the 1952 ANA convention and a past president of the organization, Martin F. Kortjohn. All at once, the 22,000 square foot Imperial Ballroom seemed to fill to capacity, as the 198 dealer tables tried to weather the crunch. News reporters and television producers filming and reporting on the event said that they had never seen anything like this before at the Americana Hotel. "It's wall to wall people," one declared.

Crowded, perhaps. But there was action, and the crowd and the dealers loved it. The feeling that there were coins to be bought and sold permeated the ballroom, and the atmosphere did not change all week long. The two-story tall bourse area, long as a football field and nearly as wide, provided an impressive setting for the largest ANA sales area ever assembled.

Later in the afternoon, the bourse floor still hyperactive, those with the inclination or the spirit went to the Young Numismatist Correspondence Course Administrator's Meeting, and then to the Exhibit Judges Meeting. The latter was an essential element at the 1976 convention, for there were a number of changes in the rules, and different categories employed than in previous years. Chief judge Robert Kriz presided at the meeting, and general chairman Jackson Chase Storm, who had a large hand in revising the rules, explained major changes. Exhibit judges were told that they could begin their critical examination of displays later that evening, or early the following day, but that regardless, all results were due no later than 4 p.m. Thursday, August 26.

At 6 p.m., a major event took place outside the hotel convention site in the nearby Equitable Life building located in Rockefeller Center. The Medallic Art Company sponsored a reception to announce the unveiling of a major exhibition of works of medallic art and sculpture that would be in the lobby of the Equitable building for several months.

An hour later, auctioneers Harvey and Ben Stack gaveled down an undated Sommer Island sixpence (small porthole variety) for $8,500 in very fine/very good condition, and the auction sale had just 4,177 lots to go before its completion. Less than an hour after the auction began, a $3600 bid for a pewter New Yorke in America colonial (lot 71) was received, and the 1976 ANA auction sale had exceeded the $132,000 prices realized for the entire 4,900 lot 1952 ANA auction.

Wednesday & Thursday

Activity was the watchword of these two midweek days of the 1976 ANA convention. Tour after tour was expertly scheduled by Roger Storm, father of the general chairman and tours chairman on the local committee. Besides the twice-daily ANS tours, there were also a Circle Line tour around Manhattan Island, the Ladies Luncheon at the former site of two World's Fairs, and the Young Numismatist's Bicentennial Tour that featured a trip to the Statue of Liberty and historic Fraunces Tavern.

There were also a number of other scheduled events on the convention schedule. Included was the popularly attended Young Numismatist Coin Grading Seminar led by professional numismatist Kurt Krueger, and meetings of the board of the Great Eastern Numismatic Association, members of the Society of Ration Token collectors, the Liberty Seated group, Society of Medieval Numismatics, Early American Coppers, Love Token collectors, Metropolitan (New York) Token & Medal Society, Dedicated Wooden Money collectors, Civil War Token collectors, Society of VAM collectors, and Society of Paper Money collectors.

Other young numismatist events on those two days included an educational forum conducted by David Cervin, which proved very popular among those in attendance, and a bicentennial tour of lower Manhattan. Events were also scheduled for the other days of the convention.

Aggie Alones and Esther Loss, chairing ladies activities, kept a frantic pace for these two days. Besides coordinating the hospitality rooms, they managed to secure cosmetic and hair dressing demonstrations and arrange for many other events to help brighten the convention.

One of the most important functions of the association is education, and at the annual ANA Educational Forum held at 8 p.m. on Thursday, a distinguished panel spoke to a large, attentive audience. Moderator Edward Janis took charge while speakers Eric P. Newman, Maj. Sheldon Carroll, Raphael Solomon, and Hank Spangenberg spoke on topics with a variety of bicentennial themes. Major Carroll's talk was the longest, Spangenberg's the shortest, and all were highly informative and of keen topical interest. A great deal of preparation evidently went into each of the talks, and the crowded audience seemed to be carefully listening to every word.

Following the educational forum, a large gathering of hobbyists went to the annual meeting of Old Time Assay Commissioners. All members have been appointed by the President of the United States to serve on the annual Assay Commission, the oldest continuing commission in government today. Formed a dozen years ago, OTACS has seen the number of hobbyist members grow each year. In 1974, all 25 members of the Commission were ANA members, and in 1975 and 1976, a substantial number held membership. Attendance at the OTACS function was high, and after brief formalities such as installing new members and new officers, an evening of socializing went on.

As this social occasion continued, down below in the exhibit area, the chief judge, Bob Kriz, and assistant judges Dianne Dietz and Charles Colver, were busy making calculations of the scoring of competitive displays. At the awards meeting on Saturday, most of the results would be announced. Not until the evening banquet would the best of show be revealed.

Friday

Moving into convention Friday, the wear began to show on the convention floor and in the pace of some individuals who had already been in New York for the week. But with the coming of the weekend, an infusion of new faces brought new zest to the bourse floor and exhibit area, and to the auction, which already had broken just about every record that there was to break.

Downstairs, the post office booth was selling out their stamps of the 50 states to place in the printed convention program. John Jensen's design, utilizing one stamp for every page proved to be a popular one. His idea was to place the states in the order of their admission to the union — with some obvious exceptions.

New York's state flag came on the second page of the convention program — signaling that it was the official host to the 1976 bicentennial ANA show. Colorado's state emblem appeared on the headquarters page, since the ANA is located in Colorado Springs. Virgil Hancock, president and Texan, had the lone star state flag appear on his page. Why, then, does the inside front cover containing a letter from President Gerald R. Ford have the Nebraska state flag, instead of Michigan? Says Jack Storm: "We discovered that President Ford was actually born in Nebraska, and moved to Michigan when he was just a child." The President's greetings to the ANA were secured through the efforts of governor Mort Reed, who worked long and hard over the wording and statement of support.

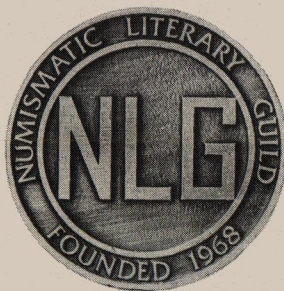

Goodfellows of the ANA — a prestigious post held by only those individuals who have served as prior general chairmen of annual conventions of the organization — held an annual breakfast meeting on Friday. Jackson Storm was inducted into membership of the elite group.

Later, the Token & Medal Society held a meeting, the Organization of International Numismatists conducted their annual symposium, and many other splinter groups held meetings for their membership. They included the Society of Philatelists and Numismatists (SPAN), the ANA Advisory Council, ANA Young Numismatists, New England Numismatic Association, the Elongated Collectors, International Organization of Wooden Money Collectors, and the Paper Money Collectors of Michigan.

Into the evening, the Numismatic Literary Guild held its soiree for the writers of the coin hobby. More than 350 people crowded into Georgian B for fun, frolic, festivities, and levity. Interesting sketches were performed by hobby luminaries, and awards given to the best writers for various hobby publications. For The Numismatist, governor Glenn B. Smedley was selected by his peers as "Best Columnist," while Cleveland banker Leon Lindheim was given the overall "Best Writer" award.

Saturday, Sunday & Aruba

Convention Saturday has always been a day of importance. All of the major awards that the ANA gives are awarded on this day. The day began with a number of meetings and the final auction session, included a symposium for Larry Jackson, 16, of Atlanta, Ga., receives a set of gold coins as the outstanding young numismatist of 1976 from Florence Schook, coordinator of the ANA's YN program. Larry's mother, Dorothy Jackson and William Krieg, vice president for collector relations of the Franklin Mint, observe the presentation.

Evan Bloom, 15, was the pride of the junior exhibitors as he was selected to receive the ANA Class C Junior Exhibit Award, the equivalent of a Junior Best in Show.

Wet-eyed and humble, Florence Schook accepts the ANA Medal of Merit for her many efforts in behalf of the ANA Young Numismatist program, which has flourished under her leadership during the past year. President Hancock and Edward C. Rochette, executive vice president, share the presentation honors.

exhibiting and judging, and at 3 p.m. reached a high-point with the ANA Awards Meeting.

Winners of the ANA medal of merit were Florence Schook of Livonia, Mich., and Clyde Hubbard, of Cuenevaca, Mexico. Both are long-time dedicated hobbyists who were highly commended by the board of governors in a citation that was publicly read to the assembled group.

Harry Forman, of Philadelphia, reports the donation of a $5,000 check to the ANA for their library in the name of Ruth Bowers. Forman's Madison Mint annually produces a silver bar for the ANA convention and this year's donation represents the proceeds from the sale of the 1976 issue.

In the sixteen classes of exhibits, there were 151 senior competitive exhibits spread over 454 cases, and 21 junior exhibits in some 41 cases. A staff of 62 volunteer judges did the bulk of the work, with formal decisions being rendered by the chief judge and his assistants. Winners, losers, and seconds and thirds all seemed pleased by the results. At the Banquet later that night, the most surprised person in attendance was Dr. Radford Sterns, the Georgia dentist whose "Colonial Georgia Paper Money of 1776" had earlier won the D.C. Wismer Memorial Award for best obsolete paper money exhibit. At the banquet, he was given the Howland Wood Best-in-Show Award.

Awards for best articles appearing in The Numismatist during the preceeding year — the Heath Literary Awards — were presented by editor Neil Harris at the awards meeting. A listing of those nine individuals who received either awards or certificates of merit were published in the June issue of The Numismatist, p. 1221.

By banquet time on Saturday evening, the key question in most people's mind was what individual would be honored with the Farran Zerbe Memorial Award — the highest tribute that the ANA can pay to any individual. Emcee Abe Kosoff kept the suspense by making introductory remarks about each member of the banquet head table — which included nearly all of the official ANA family — and telling anecdotal incidents from the lives of many. Finally, Virgil Hancock in his capacity as president announced that for the first time in ANA history, two Farran Zerbe awards were to be given.

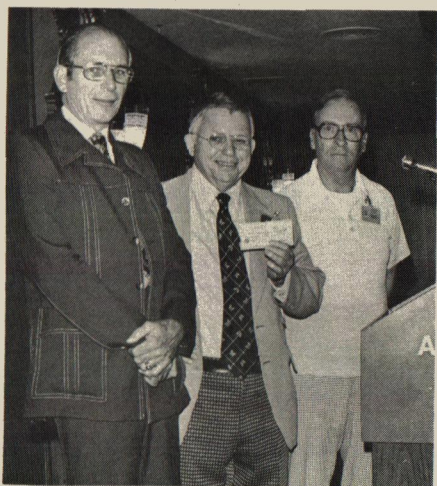

First to be honored was Maurice M. Gould, late member of the board of governors and an active hobbyist for 50 years before his untimely death last November. The second recipient was Fred Bowman, the Montreal numismatist who is a 35 year member of the ANA as well as an active member of the Canadian counterpart to our organization.

The first posthumous Farran Zerbe Memorial Award was awarded to the late Maurice M. Gould. Dr. Sol Taylor of California accepts the handsome plaque on behalf of Mrs. Jean Gould, Tustin, Calif. Abe Kosoff (c), banquet master of ceremonies, and president Hancock share in the touching occasion.

Fred C. Bowman, a renown Canadian numismatist who was unable to attend the convention due to ill health, was named the recipient of the coveted Farran Zerbe Memorial Award. John J. Pittman, ANA governor, accepts the award on Bowman's behalf.

Don Hudson (l) and Frank Russell, president and editor of the Indianapolis Coin Club, present a $100 check to John J. Pittman, ANA governor, for the ANA's grading board project.

Sunday was the final day of the 1976 ANA convention, and even then, the bourse room proved active. The Olde Time Town Meeting was reconvened and followed closely by the American Israel Numismatic Association luncheon. Later in the day, the members of the board of governors still present met for a press buffet sponsored by the local committee. This "Meet the Press" session proved to be highly informative, and will be continued again next year in Atlanta.

While New Yorkers touted the benefits to the Big Apple, the Southern friends who will host next year's ANA convention were explaining that another fruit might be even better—the Atlanta Peach. General chairman Lester Davis and assistant chairman Dr. Radford Stearns made their committee's presence known in New York, handing out a medallion invitation to come and have a Peach of a Time. Houston's general chairman for 1978, Robert Astrich, was also present.

Interestingly, the current General Chairman, Jack Storm, met with Davis, Stearns, and Astrich for about three hours during the course of the convention. Also present at the meeting, which Philip DiDomenico of Massapequa, N.Y., is overwhelmed by the huge bronze medal awarded him by the Token and Medal Society and the Medallion Art Company for his 56-piece medal exhibit of Napoleon. Philip's exhibit also won the Arlie Slabaugh Medal and Tokens Exhibit Award from the ANA Young Numismatist Program.

Byron Johnson (r), ANA governor and past president of TAMS receives the TAMS Award for Merit from William T. Louth.

Ms. Carol Glendenning, with the help of Kimberly (l) and Sandy Hawes, daughters of the exhibit chairmen, Robert and Donna Hawes, pays tribute to our nation's 200th birthday as a look-alike Statue of Liberty. This unannounced banquet feature was met with overwhelming approval as loud applause followed the trio's entrance.

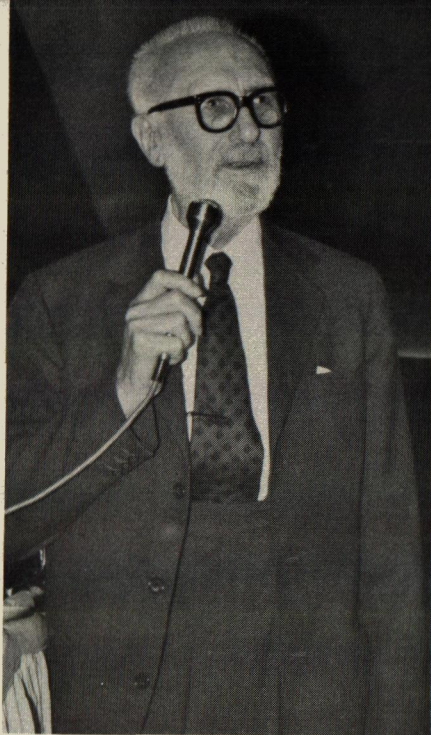

Glenn B. Smedley, ANA governor, is practically speechless in receiving the first ANA "Never Say No" award from president Hancock. Hancock singled out Glenn's tireless efforts in behalf of the ANA and created the award with the receipt in mind.

Jackson Storm (r) accepts the ANA Good Fellowship Award which symbolizes a job well done as convention general chairman from Arthur M. Fitts, ANA staff coordinator for the convention. Fitts, as general chairman of the 1973 Boston convention, is also a member of the Goodfellow group.

Jeff and Joan Trevas show off their "overdate" t-shirts suggesting "ANA Boston 1982/1." Along with the spokesman for the Boston Numismatic Society, Elliott Goldberg, the trio explained that they have a better chance of landing the 1982 ANA convention than their previous choice of 1981.

Bert Seaby, founder of the famed British firm of H.A. Seaby, Ltd. in London accepts his 50 year gold ANA membership medal and amuses the Banquet gathering with his quip, "a damned good show."

Berta Parker (l) and Evie Kelley pull their usual "we quit" routine as they close the ANA communications center. Along with Paul Whitnah, not shown here, they handled literally thousands of calls involving information, messages and paging services.

was held in the suite assigned the chairman, were Roger Storm, tours chairman; Vincent Alones, assistant chairman; and David Ganz, national publicity chairman for the 1976 convention. Besides trading information back and forth, a number of inquiries raised by the 1977 and 1978 chairmen were answered by Jack Storm, and the hope of all parties concerned is that the exchange will result in better planning for the 1977 and 1978 conventions.

Sidelights to the convention are numerous, and it would be impossible to even begin to select examples of the humor, and related events that occurred in conjunction with the show of shows. But there is one event that does bear repeating, because it occurred in front of so many people. At the Saturday night banquet, chairman Jackson Storm made a special presentation of a 10 karat gold convention badge to his father Roger, on the dual occasion of his just observed 75th birthday, and in recognition for the "tremendous contribution" that he made to the convention as a whole. Much of the day-to-day responsibility for sorting mail, and other arrangements, was handled by the elder Storm. Roger Storm was evidently touched by the distinctive tribute, for those close enough could clearly see tears welling in his eyes.

On Monday, early in the a.m., the convention officially over, a planeload of happy warriors left New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport for a trip to fabulous Aruba. From the glowing reports of those who attended, it is obvious that the trip surpassed all expectations.

New York City's fabulous bicentennial convention of the American Numismatic Association came to a close, but the memories linger on. Soon, though — just a little less than 300 days from now — the Atlanta Peach will be in full bloom.

Editor's Note: The Editorial Department of The Numismatist would like to take this opportunity to thank Coin World and Krause Publications for furnishing nearly all of this year's convention photographs.

Dr. Radford Stearns, right, accepts the Howland Wood Memorial Award for the best exhibit at the ANA convention entitled "Colonial Georgia Paper Money of 1776." Stearns is congratulated by Abe Kosoff (l), chief judge Robert F. Kriz and exhibits chairman Robert M. Hawes.

Stearns Captures Howland Wood Exhibit Award

Dr. Radford Stearns took top exhibit honors at this year's ANA convention in New York City as his exhibit of "Colonial Georgia Paper Money of 1776" won both the ANA Howland Wood Memorial Award Best-in-Show and the D.C. Wismer Memorial Award for Obsolete Paper Money Issued in the United States. Competing for recognition of their display talents and collecting effects were a total of 202 exhibits made up of 586 cases of numismatic material, the largest number of entries ever recorded in an ANA convention.

From left: Larry, Norman, Harvey and Ronald Stack attempt to keep up with the frantic bidding that prevailed during Stack's 85th Anniversary ANA Convention auction. Most sessions were attended by nearly 550 anxious participants and the total auction grossed some $4 million.

Highlights of the 1976 ANA Convention Auction

The auction sale conducted by Stack's in conjunction with the 85th anniversary convention was not the largest held at 4,178 lots, or the longest, with five sessions. But the $4 million plus prices realized total is a major record, as were many of the bids received for individual lots. Zest in the coin market was not limited to rare and scarce issues. The more common varieties in top condition also fetched top prices. Following is a session-by-session review of the 1976 ANA auction, including former pedigree prices when known.

ANA Representatives Program Enlarged

ANA vice president Grover Criswell, who heads the District Representative Program, has recently announced an enlarged list of National, Regional, and District Representatives. There are, however, still areas without representatives and applications or nominations for positions are still being accepted.

The job of a district representative (non-paying of course) is to visit coin clubs, coin shows, and other numismatic events throughout their respective areas, answering questions about the ANA and making membership applications available to those interested. In general, a district representative is expected to be a "salesman" for the ANA.

For information write Col Grover C. Criswell, Rt. 2, Citra, FL 32627.

In last month's Seminar we featured several of the microphotographs which were exhibited for the first time at the ANACS table at the New York City convention in August.

More microphotos included in the exhibit are shown here. Some are of genuine coins; others show alterations or counterfeits. As a group they show the state of the arts of counterfeiting and altering United States coins, but even finer examples than those illustrated have been seen at ANACS.

Altered Date

Counterfeit

The added "1"

The original date of this San Francisco Mint Quarter probably was 1907, 1908, or 1909. The final digit was removed and a "1" put in its place.

1896 Silver Dollar

False "S" Mintmark

The mintmark added to this coin probably is genuine, but was removed from a common San Francisco Mint dollar using sophisticated tools usually found only in laboratories. It was soldered into place, and the sides were tooled in an effort to conceal the "gap" at the base.

Counterfeit

This type of counterfeit has been brought into the United States in large numbers for more than five years. Note the spray of raised die scratches right of the eye. Another die scratch cluster appears below the nostril. The bridge of the nose is irregular in relief.

ANA Terms Dictionary Available

The third printing of the ANA's Dictionary of Numismatic Terms has been completed. Out of print for several months, the new edition contains many updates and revisions. New members of the association who did not receive a copy with their membership package may write to the association and request a copy which will be sent free of charge. Others may obtain the latest edition for $1 including postage and handling. Requests should be addressed to ANA Dictionary, P.O. Box 2366, Colorado Springs, CO 80901.

virgil hancock's FEATURING FAKES

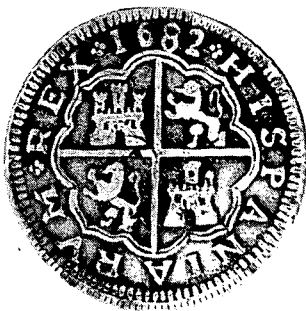

A little ingenuity can turn a "minus" into a "plus!"

(This news story, which I'm about to pass on to the local coin dealers of the land, may not qualify under the title "Featuring Fakes." But, since for nine years these pages have been devoted to protecting its ANA member readers, I'd say that anything which may smack of a rip-off is proper subject matter for disclosure here.)

In one Northern city the local coin dealers have found a way to challenge those carportbaggers who blow into a town, take a room in a motel and, following a half-page advertisement in the local newspaper, proceed to acquire at a fraction of the usual wholesale prices much of the gold and silver coins which for years have been squirreled away by non-collector little old ladies.

Most of such advertisements are sent by a reputable New York advertising agency to the "national desk" in the advertising department of the newspaper in the town about to be blitzed. Now, every newspaper wants to sell space. So the "national desk" can be alerted to notify the local dealers whenever such ad copy is received from the New York agency.

In that Northern city the local dealers learn when such a blitz is coming and they, in turn, place an equally large advertisement headlining "BEFORE YOU SELL YOUR COINS TO ANYONE ELSE, CALL YOUR LOCAL DEALER FIRST!" Then in their ad they list the names and addresses of the local dealers, and publish price quotations they will pay for gold, silver, 40% Kennedy halves, and "silver" wartime nickels, as well as coppers large and small . . . and their buy-prices are full wholesale prices which the intruder usually can't or won't meet.

In another town, a local dealer learned the motel room number which would appear in the blitz advertisement. So, very quietly in that same motel, he rented the room next door to . . . and closer to the elevator than . . . the out-of-towner's advertised room. And, with the door at the local dealer's room kept open, and a big poster sign offering top prices, and facing the oncoming would-be seller, the out-of-towner was able to buy mighty few coins at a fire-sale price.

And now to four fakes! . . .

To Venezuela's Ing. Tomas Stohr I'm indebted for the unusual fakes pictured atop these two pages. The four fakes are enlarged in the printing.

At the top of the opposite page you see, enlarged, two silver faked "2 reales" CARACAS of Venezuela, one dated 1817, the other 1821, both Craig No. 6. The actual diameter of the coins is some 24mm. The "reference museum" of the Organization of International Numismatists (OIN), a section of ANA, once had one of these faked CARACAS pieces but, like so many missing pieces, it seems to have disappeared during one seminar. (OIN usually loses at least one piece per seminar, although we've never lost any in our six seminars held in Canada, at Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver.)

You'll see, enlarged, at the top of this page two pieces, one gold, one silver. The Venezuelan gold coin to your left is a counterfeit of Friedberg No. 5, an 1875 20 bolivares, a coin about the size of a U.S. $5 gold piece. The silver piece, slightly enlarged, is an unusual fake . . . a genuine Spanish 5 pesetas piece of 1876 (Davenport No. 339) on which some joker has overstruck a Spanish "real de a ocho" die dated 1682, a date nearly two centuries before the original 1876 coin was struck! The faint original design of the 1876 Davenport No. 339, peeping through the design of the 1682 fake dies, probably won't show on this printed page.

This piece recalls the city of Chihuahua, Mexico, where there's one counterfeiter who earns his frijoles with a pair of counterfeit dies for the rare 1899 Mexican one centavo copper of "REPUBLICA MEXICANA." He takes any ordinary, common date genuine one centavo, any date 1905 through 1949 of "ESTADOS UNIDOS MEXICANOS" and overstrikes it with his counterfeit "Republica" dies. If he gets the date of his genuine "Estados Unidos" centavo slightly rotated in relation to the date on his fake "Republica" die . . . which he frequently does . . . then you easily can see traces of the original date still showing on his homegrown 1899.

Next time, those jokers should use a heavier press!

MUSEUM DIRECTIONS

by Arthur M. Fitts III,
Acting Curator

The record setting 85th Anniversary Convention of your association is now history, and what a convention it was! Each of the nearly 22,000 registrants took home with him the fruits of his labors on the bourse floor, the knowledge gained through his perusal of over 600 cases of educational exhibits, the memories of acquaintanceships renewed and new friendships made, and a wide assortment of convention related tokens, badges and medals. Your museum, too, was the beneficiary of much of the convention related material, thus preserving for posterity some of the tangible evidence of this great convention.

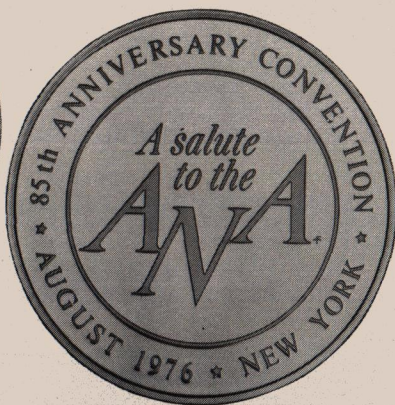

Considerable mention has already been given to the outstanding designs which graced this year's convention badges and medal sets, sales of which were of record proportions. Illustrated here is the handsome Merit of Exhibit medal presented to convention exhibitors, in which medal impressions of the obverse and reverse design are incorporated. An eight piece process set of the 1 1/2" bronze registration badge is here, as are the final plaster models of the design. Prize winning designer Mico Kaufman, turning the tables on your association, chose the award presentation ceremony as the time to present his original model to your museum, with the appreciative applause of a capacity crowd.

As has so often been the case in recent years, the closing banquet was the venue for the presentation of golden treasures to your museum. For the 40th anniversary of the Albany Numismatic Society, Joseph E. Dinardo designed and sculptured a distinctive medal; to the ANA Mr. Dinardo and his wife Carol very generously presented a unique specimen in gold. The Franklin Mint continued its long-standing tradition of presenting a specially prepared fine silver medal to all who attended the banquet; FM vice president for Collector Relations William F. Kreig presented to ANA president Virgil Hancock and museum curator Arthur Fitts a unique gold specimen of this issue, for which we are also grateful and appreciative.

Although the Olympics had closed earlier in the month, the Canadian Olympic coin program had not concluded its business. Indeed, at a small reception held at the Canadian Consulate, program administrator Jack Pinyon presented specimen sets of the final three series of silver $5 and $10 coins. Additionally, President Hancock gratefully received on behalf of your association a striking of the Canadian $100 gold coin, which is currently on display in your museum.

ANA president Virgil Hancock (r) and his wife Eleanor accept with pride on behalf of the ANA, specimen sets of the final three series of silver Canadian olympic coins and a $100 Canadian gold coin, from Jack Pinyon, olympic coin program administrator.

Each year more member clubs meet during convention week and each year more of these organizations prepare souvenir handouts for their members and guests. Noted in the August issue of

The Numismatist was the Georgia Numismatic Association token, struck to promote the 1977 ANA Convention in Atlanta, which was distributed to interested conventioners. The Token and Medal Society issued its annual medal; this year there was a pewter specimen in addition to the traditional bronze and silver striking. Members of the Old Time Assay Commissioners Society met to welcome new members, as well as to receive their distinctive bronze badges, specimens of which were also available in silver. The Latin American Paper Money Society (LANSA), through the courtesy of Paramount International Coin Corporation, issued a souvenir card on which it appropriately laminated a 10 soles note of Peru. As its contribution to the celebration of the Bicentennial of American Independence, the American Israel Numismatic Association issued single bronze medals and sets of bronze and silver medals, the obverse of which bear the likeness of George Washington, his signature and the legend, To bigotry no sanction—To persecution no assistance.

To all, clubs, firms and individuals go the sincere thanks of the entire association for their tangible and generous support.

YOUNG NUMISMATIST NEWS

Roman Coin Project

by David R. Cervin, ANA 65523

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! Yes, the Roman Coin Project has a birthday this month. It is as old in years as our nation is in centuries. Both have a good future providing all of us participate.

Now for the sixty-four dollar question. Has the RCP been a success? Only you, the reader, can answer this question. If you have earned a single Roman coin, yes, the RCP has been successful. If you have earned four Roman coins, then the Project may be regarded as a howling success. If you have earned no coins at all, but still read this column, then the RCP may be regarded as a partial success. However, if the majority of ANA juniors do not even read this page, then we are approaching failure. So it behooves you juniors who are participating in this program to encourage your friends to participate also. In they are not members of ANA, sign them up. Remember, after earning four coins, the signing of a new member, either junior or regular, earns a Byzantine coin under the Advanced RCP.

A question has come up regarding juniors who first find us when they are possibly in their seventeenth and last year as a junior. Is their earning capacity for Roman and Byzantine coins limited? Definitely not! Here are two very important rules:

1. Any junior who earns at least one coin during his or her seventeenth year, may earn up to four during their eighteenth year.
2. So long as the fourth coin is earned during one's eighteenth year, the four Byzantine coins of the Advanced RCP may be earned during one's nineteenth year.

Clearly to take advantage of rules 1 and 2, juniors must continue their ANA memberships as regular members. However, this is what most juniors do anyway.

Let's look at some of our recent

Library news book reviews

All books listed here are available to members on a loan basis from the ANA library. Loan requests should list the book's catalog number.

Members wishing to purchase these books can quite often acquire them from a dealer more quickly and easily than from a publisher. In other cases, write to the address listed with each book.

GB30 PENNY WHIMSY by William H. Sheldon. 1976. 391 pp. Hard Cover. 1976 Illus. Quarterman Publications, Inc., 5 South Union St., Lawrence, MA 01804. $25.

This reprint has been long awaited by many collectors of United States coins and is the definitive work on U. S. large cents (1793-1814) and all the varieties in this series. Practically unavailable in its earlier printings and sought after by many who are enamored of the early coppers, the original text is used with plates reproduced from photographs. Sheldon's system of grading and valuation is intact for study and use by both the novice and experienced collector. An absolute must for the large cent enthusiast.

LA70 LES MONNAIES TUNISIENNES
S3 DEPUIS 1859 by H. Schweikert. 1973. 80 pp. Illus. Paper Cover. H. Schweikert, 47, Avenue Gambetta, F-94700 Maisons-Alfort, Paris, France. $10.

Although written in French, this book is a valuable asset to the collector of Tunisian coins. Each coin struck since 1859 to the present is described, illustrated and valued. Mintage is given when available and the Arabian inscriptions are magnified and translated.

BD20 ON THE ANCIENT COINS AND
D3 MEASURES OF CEYLON by T. W. Rhys Davis. 1975. 62 pp. Illus. Paper Cover. Obol International, 8 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, IL 60603. $6.

This is a reissue of articles published in 1877, written by Mr. Davis and appearing in the International Numismata Orientalia. The author, because of his knowledge of the language, literature and history of Ceylon, is able to present a total picture to his readers in relating the story of Ceylonese numismatics. Highly specialized and appealing to the serious student of numismatics.

JD45 SMALL CHANGE IN SPAIN, 1931-
N3 1941 by S. Nathan. 1974. 24 pp. Illus. Paper Cover. Spanish Philatelic Society, c/o Theo. Van Dam, P. O. Box 25, Brewster, NY, 10509.

The period of 1931 to 1941 was a complex period in Spanish history, enfolding social unrest prior to the Civil War, the trauma of the war itself, and the unsettled times of the years that followed. During this time coins and stamps merged together and Mr. Nathan's "cameo" deals with the numismatic-philatelic history of that era.

AA90 MONEY SCALES AND WEIGHTS by T. S5 Sheppard and J. F. Musham. 1975. 221 pp. Illus. Hard Cover. Spink & Son Ltd. & Organization of International Numismatics. Order from: OIN Publications Committee, P. O. Box 3013, Alexandria, VA 22302. $10.

The issuance of paper money and checks, and the striking of bimetal coins have made money scales and their weights obsolete and so scales have become items for collectors. In ancient times on through the eras when coins contained their full metal values, money scales were a necessity to complete a monetary transaction. Coins were often counterfeited or chipped, and weighing was the easiest way to check validity and metal content. Money Scales and Weights first appeared in the Numismatic Circular in the 1920s and was reprinted in limited quantity in 1923 in book form. However, it soon became unavailable and has been much sought after by both numismatists and the antique collectors. This is a reprint jointly published by Spink & Son Ltd. and the Organization of International Numismatics. The basis of the book is notes concerning a collection of over two hundred scales and is probably the most complete work on this subject.

WORLD COIN NEWS

INDIA — Indian Government Warns Against Illegal Coin Offers

The Numismatic Agency of India has issued a warning to collectors that offers for the sale of current circulating coins of India by Indian dealers are illegal and cannot be filled. The Indian Agency, which is the sole channel for foreign purchases of new issues of proof or uncirculated coinage, has received complaints from collectors that money sent to private Indian dealers in check, money order or other forms in response to advertising outside of India has resulted in failure to receive coins or refunds of money.

No current coinage can be exported from India — circulating coins, uncirculated coins, proofs, specimens or coins of kind in current use — except by the Government through the Numismatic Agency of India. Offers from any other sources in India or elsewhere may be fraudulent, with one exception. The exception is that proof or circulated sets of coins of years previous to 1976 may be offered by dealers outside of India who have acquired them from collectors who originally received them through the Numismatic Agency of India. These would be very limited in quantity since all coin issues are limited to five per person.

The Agency reported that the Finance Ministry of India is taking action in each case of new issue offerings by Indian dealers to prevent further deception and loss by foreign collectors. The Agency welcomes hearing from collectors in any country who have responded to advertising and have not received coins or refunds. Through the Agency the Government has appealed to publications in all countries not to accept any further advertising from Indian dealers.

The address of the Numismatic Agency of India serving North America is 76 South Orange Avenue, South Orange, New Jersey 07079.

UNITED STATES — Bicentennial Coin Production Ends This Year

Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon has directed the Mint to discontinue the special Bicentennial reverse designs and to revert to the eagle designs on the reverses of all quarters, half dollars and dollars produced in 1977, Mrs. Mary Brooks, Director of the Mint, has announced.

"For the first time in its history, the Mint changed the designs on circulating coins in honor of an anniversary of American Independence," Mrs. Brooks said. "And the ending of production of these historically significant coins brings to a close one of the most important coinage changes and production feats ever attempted by the Mint. These coins are destined to become treasured keepsakes of the Bicentennial. So I urge all Americans to ask for them at their local banks while they are still readily available."

The United States Congress authorized the issuance of new designs emblematic of the Bicentennial of the American Revolution on the reverses of quarters, halves and dollars dated 1776-1976. And it also provided that the Secretary of the Treasury would determine the time-length for usage of the special Bicentennial designs. The Treasury Secretary's decision to revert to the eagle designs that last appeared on 1974 dated Washington quarters, Kennedy halves and Eisenhower dollars follows the tradition established in 1792 of using a figure or representation of an eagle on certain of the nation's coins. By Act of 1792, Congress created the Mint and ordered that "upon the reverse of each of the gold and silver coins there shall be the figure or representation of an eagle." The special Bicentennial coin designs resulted from a nationwide coin design competition sponsored by the Treasury Department in celebration of the nation's 200 years of freedom.

Catalog Released on Massachusetts Medals

A new catalog has just been released covering Commemorative Medals of Massachusetts Cities & Towns. Four years in compilation, the catalog lists over 335 medals issued over the last 130 years by or for Massachusetts communities. Each listing includes a description of the obverse and reverse designs along with data on metal, finish, size, edge, quantity made, and original issue price. Manufacturer and issuing organization are also given. Many listings carry historical or descriptive notes and references to older catalogs are included.

The catalog is published in a 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 loose leaf format with provisions for periodic updating as more data is discovered or new medals are issued. With over 240 pages and 275 medals illustrated, this is the first up-to-date reference of Massachusetts commemorative medals since 1923. Orders at $9 postpaid may be sent to the editor: Robert R. Heath, P. O. Box 464, Burlington, MA 01803.

SPMC Names Doug Watson Editor of Paper Money

Appointment of Doug Watson, Scandinavia, Wisconsin, as editor of Paper Money, the bimonthly journal of the Society of Paper Money Collectors, Inc., has been announced by SPMC President Robert E. Medlar.

Watson succeeds Barbara Mueller who held the editor's post since the Spring 1964 issue when the journal was published quarterly. Ms. Mueller resigned in July because of ill health. Medlar credited her with "making Paper Money one of the best periodicals in the field of numismatics."

Watson is a numismatist of over twenty years standing. He operates a commercial art business and serves as editor

The new editor is seeking submissions of manuscripts and queries from authors and prospective authors on any subject of interest to collectors of paper money.

The 2,500-member Society of Paper Money Collectors is a non-profit numismatic organization dedicated to the collectors of paper money and allied items. The bimonthly Paper Money contains in-depth articles, news items and advertisements pertaining to the field. It is issued free to SPMC members. Membership is available to all persons interested in this phase of numismatics. Dues are $8 a year, with a one-time $2 charge for new members, total $10. In a Class by Ourselves in Rare Coin Auctioning!

If you have an important collection of rare coins or currency for sale, or single pieces of especially high value, there is really only one way to sell—through a major auction, a rare coin sale conducted by Bowers and Ruddy Galleries! Only in this way will you realize the highest possible prices.

Don't sell valuable rarities or choice type coins outright. Don't trust the big job of offering them to the collecting public to a little auction firm. If you do either, you will probably not get nearly what you should for your coins. Instead, consider for a moment the valuable qualities which are yours through a Bowers and Ruddy Galleries rare coin auction—qualities which can be yours for just a low commission rate.

SUPERB CATALOGUING. For the same commission rate that another large auction firm would offer you (or you may find our rate to be even lower), you get the finest possible treatment for your valuable property. We know how much time and money you have given to your collection, and we treat your property as though it were ours! We are working together to obtain the same result—high prices—since our commission is a percentage of the price which each lot brings. Years of numismatic expertise go into the cataloguing of your coins. Unmatched photographic illustrations of important pieces are placed right with the lots, not on separate plates somewhere else in the catalogue. We use lots of illustrations, too! In short, we give you and your coins treatment of an uncompromising nature—to entice bidders to bid liberally.

Bowers and Ruddy Galleries, Inc.

IMMEDIATE CASH ADVANCES are available in any amount. There is no need to sell your property outright at less than you should receive, because we will gladly give you an instant cash advance the moment your consignment is accepted for auction.

COMPLETE PROTECTION FOR YOUR HOLDINGS. Your property is fully insured and protected in our bank vaults from the moment we receive it—and we will even send couriers to pick up your coins if your collection warrants it. A secure financial settlement following the sale is also guaranteed, for no auction service anywhere is more reliable than Bowers and Ruddy Galleries, a member of the billion-dollar-strong General Mills family of companies. Peace of mind is yours!

PROFESSIONAL REFERENCES. James F. Ruddy and Q. David Bowers are life members of the American Numismatic Association and are members of the Professional Numismatists Guild (Mr. Ruddy is a recipient of the PNG's Distinguished Service Award, and Mr. Bowers is a director of the PNG), the International Association of Professional Numismatists, the American Numismatic Society, the Royal Numismatic Society of London, and other leading organizations worldwide. Both founders of our firm are widely known for their research and writings in the field of numismatics, including best-selling books on coin grading and investing.

THE BEST POSSIBLE PRICES for your rarities and choice type coins are the result of our famous numismatic expertise, our research into varieties, our superbly illustrated auction catalogues, and our extensive advertising for each auction. THERE IS NO FINER AUCTION SERVICE!

Bowers and Ruddy Galleries, Inc.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIALS OF PAST CONSIGNORS. Our files are packed with letters of appreciation from collectors, dealers and investors who have consigned their coins to our auctions. We quote from just a few of them:

"The research and preparation which has gone into the catalog makes it an excellent reference work. Your researchers have done themselves (and Bowers and Ruddy Galleries) proud!"—The Rev. Henry J. Nagorka, whose outstanding collection of Polish coins and medals we auctioned in November 1974.

"I was well pleased with your wonderful description of my coins. The prices realized nearly DOUBLED the offers I received from other dealers."—Armand Champa, whose prize-winning collection of rare U.S. patterns and regular issues we sold in May 1972.

Matt Rothert, distinguished past president of the ANA, consigned his outstanding currency collection, and was so pleased with our sale of November 1973 that he made additional consignments.

In November 1974 we auctioned the magnificent collection of Australian coins belonging to Dr. Curtis R. Paxman, and the consignor was so pleased with the results of his sale (where a number of price records were smashed) that he next consigned his famed collection of Canadian coins.

"I am so pleased with the results of the auctioning of my collection. The illustrations and write-up in the catalogue were excellent and deserve the highest praise."—JWM of Phoenix, Arizona.

"Thank you for the fine presentation of my lots. I particularly appreciated the honesty and accuracy of your descriptions."—FMK of Bellevue, Washington.

"Just received your check representing payment for my consignment to your auction—and what a check! Through your auction I received nearly THREE TIMES what I had hoped my coins would bring. Thank you, thank you, thank you!!! Let me add, too, that I was thoroughly delighted with the job you did in describing my coins. The entire presentation was first rate—and I was proud that my coins were part of it."—BL of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

"I am so pleased with your perceptiveness in reviewing my [coins]. Your explanation . . . fully signifies the difference between 'merchandizers of coins' and a truly professional organization such as Bowers and Ruddy Galleries and staff."—JB of Horseheads, New York.

We think our auction service is first rate—but, most important, our consignors do, too! Become one of them the next time you decide to sell your collection or significant single rarities (minimum consignment must be $2,000). Our autumn edition of The Journal of Numismatic Fine Arts features a wide selection of both Roman Republican and also Imperial coinage. In addition, we are offering several interesting coin hoards from not only Rome and Greece, but from India as well. While our autumn issue includes a small offering of antiquities, we plan on including an extensive array of Egyptian artifacts and Roman oil lamps in the winter issue. Below, from our autumn Journal, we offer two of our coin hoards with items ranging from $.50 to $400.

A HOARD OF RAJA RAJA CHOLA

The Cholas dominated Southern India from 985 until 1035, during which brief time they conquered Ceylon and overthrew the 800-year-old kingdom of the Pallavas of Kanchi. As the power of the Cholas spread, so did their coinage, and the type was copied by the kings of Ceylon. This abundant hoard of bronze base staters was struck by Rajaraja the Great, founder of the dynasty, and date from 985-1013. The obverse depicts the stylised, standing figure of the king in regal robes holding the lotus flower in the left hand and trident in his right; on the reverse, the king is shown seated with the Nagari legend SRI RAJA RAJA. Each50

A HOARD OF JULIUS CAESAR

Minted in Africa in 47 B.C., these coins (Sydenham 1013) are the first to recall Caesar's claim to divine ancestry. The obverse pictures the head of Venus while the reverse reinforces the suggestion of his lineage by depicting Aeneas carrying Anchises on his shoulder and the palladium in his right hand. As a goddess of particular meaning for the Julian gens, Venus' name was used as the watchword by Caesar's troops at Pharsalus.

PRIVATE & TERRITORIAL GOLD INVESTMENT PLAN

A UNIQUE PROGRAM under the personal supervision of Don Kagin and A.M. Kagin. This program must be limited to only a few. Not many coins now exist, and availability is sporadic. Don's intensive research (which will ultimately be incorporated and published in book form) will alter the rarity and values of a number of pieces. Until this book is published, some "bargains" can still be obtained. BUT — in order to take advantage of these bargains, you must be a member of this investment program. Time is of the essence in this area, as unlike other fields, only a single specimen may become available before the book is published. Much new and surprising information has been uncovered in this intriguing field. Those availing themselves of this program will receive something educational (often something unpublished) with every purchase.

We offer a wide range of issues including: PACIFIC x MORAN & CLARK x C. & A. BECHTLER x MORMAN (UTAH) x U.S. ASSAY OFFICE x WASS MOLITOR & CO. x OREGON EXCHANGE CO. x CLARK GRUBER & CO. x MOFFAT & CO. x KELLOGG & CO. x A. HUMBERT x CALIFORNIA FRACTIONAL GOLD AND MANY OTHERS.

As purchasers of the World's largest and finest Pioneer Gold Collection (The Clifford-Kagin collection on public display at the Old San Francisco Mint), we are "Uniquely" qualified to assist and advise your endeavors in this fascinating and lucrative field. If you are currently collecting or investing in gold coins (or just thinking about it), we urge you to call or write for specifics — all replies will be held in the strictest confidence.

it makes sense

If you have a legal problem — go to a lawyer

If you have a health problem — go to a doctor

If you have a pioneer gold problem — go to a specialist

WE PAY MORE!

WHY SELL FOR LESS?

WE WANT TO BUY: Your entire collection is urgently needed no matter what the size, if it contains the items we are looking for. Generally we are interested in any collection which contains Choice and Rare coins and early U.S. coins in AU or better condition.

INDIVIDUAL COINS: We are sincerely interested in individual sets and single coins as well as complete collections. We are particularly interested in worthwhile numismatic items that retail over $25.00 each. Our needs range from Colonials thru Gold, including rare dates as well as more common dates in Choice condition.

SELLING TO US: You will find that selling to our Rare Coin Galleries is easy and safe. Here is all you do—Package your coins carefully and send them to us insured or registered mail. You may state the value you wish to receive or send your coins for our generous offer. Upon receipt David Bland, Jr. will personally examine your coins and notify you immediately. Our offer will be in the form of a confidential insured check — cash payments can also be arranged. No collection is too large, (we have over $1,000,000.00 to spend). If your collection is too large to mail please send an itemized inventory to the attention of David Bland, Jr., and we will travel to you if the size of the collection warrants it.

YOU WILL RECEIVE MORE FOR YOUR COINS: Because our needs are so great at this time we will pay more than any other major dealer in the U.S. Why sell your collection for less when it is so easy and safe to sell your coins to David Bland, Jr.?

MORE ON OUR NATIONWIDE BUYING SERVICE

The success of our nationwide buying service was entirely contingent upon you—and you have made it successful. From Maine to Hawaii, we have received countless collections to buy. In the two years since the beginning of our nationwide buying service, we have purchased 87.4% of these collections. This has enabled us to expand our retail sales, but even more important, it has instituted a rational, reasonable, and secure way for you to sell your collection. To those of you who have sold us material, we pledge our continued fair and upright dealings. For those of you that we have not yet met, we urge you to take advantage of our nationwide buying service.

Here is what we are able to provide:

1. Unlimited instant cash (confidential, of course, if you wish).
2. Bank references available. (Contact Mr. Bill Whitsitt at Citizens National Bank, 2001 Bryan Tower, Dallas, or Mr. Steve Parker, Texas Bank & Trust, One Main Place, Dallas.)
3. Call us collect at (214) 748-4044 or (214) 748-4045 if you desire to sell a large collection, or you may ship your collection with invoice to Mike Follett Rare Coins, Plaza Level, One Main Place, Dallas, Texas 75250. Within 24 to 48 hours, you will receive our generous offer by return mail.
Should you decide not to sell your collection, we will return your coins immediately upon hearing from you. Naturally, the coins will be fully insured and we will pay all postage. As mentioned above, 87.4% of those who have sent us coins in this manner have sold their collection. Through this method, you risk absolutely nothing.
4. Should you have an extremely large collection, we can and will be at your home, office, or bank anywhere in the U.S.A. within 24 hours of your call.
5. We are prepared to buy your entire collection, not just the choice material.
6. You are selling to a coin retailer, not someone who sells to another dealer. This is so important. Consequently, you will receive the highest possible price.
7. The company you will be dealing with is known and respected throughout the numismatic world. Backed with 13 years of experience in buying, selling, and grading coins, Mike Follett Rare Coins has established itself as a leader in the numismatic fraternity. Your coins will be inspected by either Mike Follett or Don Willis. Mr. Willis, formerly of Marlow, Oklahoma, is also widely known for his knowledge of numismatics. He is a member of the P.N.G., T.N.A., and A.N.A. It is with great pride that we welcome him in our organization in order that we may be better able to serve you.

We are in particular need of the following numismatic items: all choice type material, early bust dollars and quarters in any grade, all key and semi-key coins with a wholesale value of $10 or more, scarce and rare dates in seated quarters or halves, and all U.S.A. and foreign gold — both rare and common. As we have marketed 19 coins with retail value of over $25,000 each during the last twelve months, we desperately need rare and unique material.

To conclude, take advantage of our policy. It is a service that thousands of satisfied customers have found profitable and safe. We sincerely believe that we can go further in meeting your individual needs than any other buying program offered today.

What's a Numistamp?

Not a Stamp! Not a Coin!

It's a Delightful Medallion Merger of the Two!

United States
Numistamps Proclaimed more Beautiful than Actual Coins Portrayed.

See for Yourself...

Enjoy New... More Exciting... Less Expensive Type Collecting...

A Collector's Dream

Discriminating professional coin collectors have proclaimed Numistamps more beautiful than their prototypes.

Numistamps offer an opportunity to own specimens of every denomination and design of coins issued by the United States Mint from 1793 to date . . . 117 in all . . . at very modest prices.

Designer Expert Numismatist

Morton Reed, widely known for his syndicated column, Money Clips, and his regular Coin World feature, Coinology, is developer of the Numistamp concept and designer of the several series.

Start Your Collection Now

Numistamps—an exciting and completely new concept in type collecting—are not only conversation pieces, but offer substantial appreciation in value because of the limited issues.

Send now for complete details on this exciting new concept in collecting. Remember this is a limited edition, so act now. These sets are sold on a first come, first serve basis.

Exactness of Detail

A Numistamp is a metal plaquette bearing exact, intricately detailed reproductions, in high relief of the Obverse and Reverse of an actual coin.

Issued in Limited Series

Each Numistamp series is limited to 4,000 serially numbered sets. Two new Numistamps will be issued each month.

Material and Size

The base metal of Numistamps is copper. The finishes closely resemble the coins they portray. Plaquettes measure 1-3/8 x 2-1/4 inches.

CASH ADVANCE

THAT'S RIGHT!!!! We will advance a percentage of the fair retail value of your collection immediately upon receipt. Please send inventory first — do not send coins until you hear from us. We will then sell your collection at one of our forthcoming auction sales and you will receive your final settlement with 30 days after the sale. Our commission rates are always reasonable.

During the time that your coins are in our possession, they are stored in our protected and insured vaults. When you receive your advance check, if for any reason you are not satisfied with the amount of the check, just return it and your coins will be returned postpaid.

In many cases, our advance will be almost equal to other offers of outright purchase.

If you are not currently on our mailing list, just drop us a postcard with your full name and address and we will place your name on our catalog mailing list. —————

REMEMBER — It is not too late to have your collection included in our next outstanding auction sale.

OUR SALES ARE USUALLY HELD IN THE PARKER HOUSE

We are always in need of desirable numismatic material and will be happy to travel anywhere in the world to acquire it — either for auction or for outright purchase provided the value of the material warrants it.

NO COLLECTION IS TOO LARGE — We will furnish bank references upon request.

NOW YOU TOO CAN

SELL AT RETAIL

If you could get retail for your coins or at least most of your coins, would you consider selling? If your answer is yes, send us an outline or listing of your holdings. How can we get you retail? Read on....

Doctors Investment Group will pay over retail to obtain choice numismatic material. It can save us by buying a well built collection from an individual instead of chasing all over the country. Colonial Coins, Inc., a Texas corporation with oil money to burn, must buy in order to fill investment needs. We also are one of the largest bullion companies and will trade for your collection, in bullion gold coins or bars or silver coins or bars. This might be a great tax advantage or easier for an estate to handle, rather than a diversified collection. We will not have to go to other bullion dealers to get bullion to trade you.

MAIL AND FLOOR AUCTIONS — Our growing auction company needs coins for active buyers. We have fresh money buyers and can get your coins to auction and you paid in full within 90 days. We also offer ample cash advances on certain deals. We offer the least expensive auction fees — as small as 10% on large deals.

FIXED PRICE SALES — Yes, we are the first to offer to sell your coins at a 10% fee and you may catalog and price them yourself. We must agree on the grade and price to be fair to both buyer and seller. You may sell retail this way.

OUTRIGHT PURCHASE — We feel that we can pay more because we have full time retail stores in Houston, San Antonio and Denver with established clientele who come in daily to invest. Our bullion department will pay up to 98% of sell price on your bullion items — most numismatic firms either aren't interested or want to make 10% on these deals. We also deal in Franklin Mint Issues!

If these reasons sound interesting to you, contact us. We will travel to see your coins.

WE'LL LET YOU IN
ON 1,000 SECRETS ——— that's what you get with a years subscription to "Money Talks"

Each issue of our monthly publication "MONEY TALKS" is crammed full of bargain, money saving offerings. Rare stamps and coins, medals, artifacts, jewelry, novelties, memorabilia, collections, and auctions—fill—the—pages—of—this—unique—magazine. Now in our seventh year of print the issues are bigger and better than ever. Each issue (we go to press at least 10 times a year) is 8½" x 11" in size and at least 32 pages. Almost every item offered for sale is photographed.

COINS - Both U.S. and foreign, coins and currency are featured every month. You will find rarities that sell for many thousands of dollars to coins that sell for under $5.00. Proof-sets, tokens, errors, ancients, literally anything of numismatic relevance has been offered at one time or another.

STAMPS - There's no country whose stamps have not been featured in "MONEY TALKS". We've even sold the famous inverted U.S. airmail. First Day Covers, plate blocks, imperfs, Christmas Seals, freaks . . . you name it and the odds are we've sold it. Take advantage of our large inventory and money-saving offerings by joining the thousands who already subscribe to "MONEY TALKS".

MEDALS - Superior is West Coast Headquarters for Franklin Mint items. We also have a fine selection of inaugural medals, commemorative plates, ingots, statuary and many other objets d'art. (Generally our large Franklin Mint ads appear first in "Money Talks", so subscribers have first choice.)

MISCELLANEOUS - Many people subscribe solely for the items that fall into this category. We've sold beach towels that look like hundred dollar bills. Giant chocolate pennies. Cast iron piggy-banks. Old song sheets. Museum pieces from Greece and Egypt. The unique. The weird. The strange. The bizarre. Anything is fair game for "Money Talks".

When you subscribe to "Money Talks" you will be among the first to know about our frequent coin or stamp auctions. You will receive select offerings that are not public knowledge (we featured and sold hundreds of rolls of B.U. 1964 Kennedy halves which appreciated 40% in less than two months). You will have the opportunity to take part in frequent quizzes . . . with prizes for correct entries. You will be privy to the recommendations and knowledge of experts who can aid you in making good investments.

... and it's simple to order from "MONEY TALKS". Each copy has a self-contained reply order blank. All orders are promptly filled and you can charge them to your BankAmericard, Master Charge, or American Express.

London's oldest dealer in new issues.

As London's oldest and largest numismatic dealer, Spink of St. James's are often appointed by Governments to handle the distribution of new coin issues on an exclusive basis.

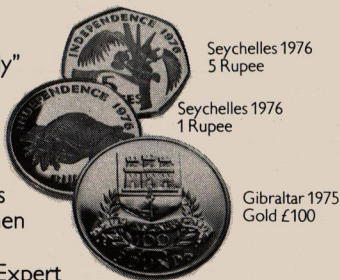

It is Spink policy only to handle new issues which are limited mintings of legal tender coins. This enhances their long term numismatic value.

Our specialist Modern Coin Department also carries stocks of most other new issues released into circulation as part of the comprehensive selection of 20th Century Coins offered to discriminating collectors.

The Spink periodical "Modern Coin Quarterly" includes a new issue section as well as listing our current stock. Like its companion publication, "Banknote Quarterly," it's free on request.

Our prices stand up well to comparison. They're quoted in sterling, so overseas collectors often benefit from favourable exchange rates when purchasing.

Feel free to write to us or visit our Galleries. Expert advice and authoritative valuations are always available. Your assurance of attentive service is the reputation we have acquired over three centuries.

Knowledge is the key to enjoyment and success in numismatics . . . Books are the keys to knowledge. Remember, "buy the book — before the coin."

THE RED BOOK — A Guide Book of US Coins — is the standard retail value guide for all US coins. It is updated yearly with information on private, state, and territorial gold issues, silver and gold proof coins. A wealth of important background information is provided on the historical development of United States coinage. Always the top selling numismatic book. $3.95

THE BLUE BOOK — Handbook of US Coins — is the most practical and helpful numismatic reference book for beginners and advanced collectors alike. It describes and illustrates all US copper, nickel, silver, and gold coins; includes mint records and mint marks. Gives premium values for all US coins, and expert advice on what to buy when starting a collection. Revised annually. $2.95

COUNTERFEITS of US COINS by Larry Spanbauer. Would you buy a counterfeit? Not if you knew! With Spanbauer's photoguide you would know. Hailed as one of the two most helpful books when checking coins, it covers US coins, Colonial coinage, and Private Mint Issues from 1616 to date. $3.99

THE GUIDE BOOK of MODERN US CURRENCY by Neil Shafer. — The challenging and colorful series of modern US paper money is unfolded in detail in this comprehensive valuation catalog of issues from 1929 to date. Realistic market values are furnished, along with Bureau of Engraving totals and delivery dates. Special features include detailed background information and complete coverage of all US Military Payment Certificates. Fully illustrated. $2.99

THE GUIDE to the GRADING of US COINS by Brown & Dunn. The standard grading guide. Tells how to determine the various conditions of US coins: Good, Very Good, Fine, Very Fine, Extremely Fine, and About Uncirculated. Our St. Louis Auction and our all-color catalog brought praises from consignors. Our Dallas auction will also display consignor coins in the same beautiful way.

The Steve Ivy Numismatic Auctions all-color catalog represented a first in numismatics — never before had consignor coins been depicted in such a beautiful manner. The response to the catalog was beyond our expectations and the mail bids we received indicate what a significant benefit our catalog was to both consignor and bidder alike.

On December 10th and 11th, Steve Ivy Numismatic Auctions will be hosting its second public auction at the Hilton Inn in Dallas. As in St. Louis, the Dallas auction will feature the same consignor benefits and considerations:

In St. Louis, and again in Dallas, our consignors' coins will appear for bidding in a beautiful all-color catalog in which each coin will be complemented by the clearest most accurate color display possible.

Your consignment coins will receive remarkable notice through our active mailing list.

We'll publicize this and every auction we hold in the professional manner you deserve.

Each consignment coin will be cataloged by our staff of numismatic experts.

While in our care, our consignor contract includes full insurance for your consigned coins.

Our consignment commissions are very reasonable; our rates are extremely competitive and fair.

Generous cash advances for consignments are available.

For information on how you can consign your coins to our December auction, contact Mr. Bob Merrill — the Director of our auction company — at the phone numbers listed below.

1863 $2 1/2.

An exceptional specimen. Proof 65+, a state of preservation that we seldom find and use sparingly. An even strike with perfectly frosted devices. For purposes of identification, distinguishing characteristics include an obv. lint mark above the tenth star and an alloy impurity of light purple toning on the rev. rim from 1 to 2 o'clock.

A proof only date. 30 struck and very rare. Our research indicates 23 offerings at auction over the past 32 years. Several auction tallies were for the Bell II specimen variously graded EF and AU, currently being offered at $27,500. The remaining 20 auctions represent no more than 16 different coins determined from the auction descriptions. Four or five coins reside in the ANS, Smithsonian, Elisaberg, and Norweb collections. The Johns Hopkins specimen was sold to us at the Garrett Sale.

In fact, it would appear that the rarity of the 1863 has been exaggerated with statements such as 7-8 known predominating. Catalogue writers in any effort to highlight a coin's rarity provide it with a pedigree which also serves the purpose of decreasing the number extant. Therefore, a non-pedigreed coin is different from a previously offered specimen unless other factors determined the coin's disposal. Assuming some further duplication of auction specimens added to those permanently impounded, we believe that there are approximately 15 extant. A very rare quarter eagle and on par with the 1841 and 1854S in terms of rarity and desirability. Certainly worth $62,500.

From the editors of Coin World...

This book can tell you more about money than any numismatic expert in the world.

Announcing the Coin World Almanac—the most authoritative and comprehensive numismatic reference ever published.

Now you can own a complete and concise coin reference. A reference so thorough that it enables you to quickly and easily find thousands of facts about the world's coins and paper money that virtually no expert in the world could supply without this very book.

Ten Years of Research

Compiled and edited by the editors of Coin World, the world's largest numismatic publication, it is the product of ten years of diligent research. In 834 pages, the editors have published the data most vital to studying, collecting, and investing in the coins of the world.

What you'll find in the Almanac

The Coin World Almanac is so complete it includes general information, basic to numismatics, and specific, detailed information that can answer even the most obscure questions on the history, regulation, minting, printing, prices, and collecting of the coins and paper money of the U.S. and more than 100 foreign countries.

You'll find information on... How coins are made... Proof and uncirculated coins... Detecting counterfeit coins and bills... Numismatic terms and abbreviations... Error definitions... Collection protection... Coin grading... Auction procedures... How coins become rare... World's rarest, largest, smallest, and most beautiful coins... Mint marks... How paper money is printed... Coins as investments... and Record sale prices.

And, you'll find chronological details on... Gold and silver prices... Mintage of U.S. coins and proof coins... World coins of low mintage... Free world mint report... Laws relating to numismatics... Federal agencies that control money... Commemorative coins... Colonial, confederate, and pre-colonial coins... Issue dates, designers, engravers, and models for U.S. money... Fakes, forgeries, and counterfeits... and much more.

Never has such information been published in a single, easy-to-use volume. It enables you to find in a moment, answers to questions that would require hours of research if, indeed, you were able to locate the original source material at all.

Krugerrand Coin Jewelry.

Ounce for ounce, the best gift in the world.

The Krugerrand Collection is more than just beautiful jewelry.

It also happens to be the world's best way to own gold.

That's because the Krugerrand is the only coin minted that contains exactly one troy ounce of pure gold — not a fractional amount. Its gold content, therefore, is never in doubt.

So even when it stands alone, the Krugerrand is desirable.

But when set in fashionable, 14K gold Wideband frames, it's practically irresistible.

Stop in soon and see our entire gift collection.

CHRISTMAS 1976

"The Little Drummer Boy"

Legend has it that a small boy watched as, one after another, people brought their gifts to the Baby Jesus. Not having any gifts of silver or gold to offer, he ran home and returned with his drum and softly played for The Baby in the manger.....

A touching and warm story translated into a beautiful and traditional silver ingot ...

15 Centuries of Coinage for $75

Many collectors study coins because of the fascinating historical stories they tell. Coins tell economic history, recall the rise and fall of great empires and civilizations, recall the birth and struggles of great religions, and illustrate the development of many different languages. The staff at International Coins and Currency thought of a collector with these interests when they designed the Old World Collection.

The Old World Collection includes four silver and five bronze coins, all nice specimens, each minted by a great empire in the ancient and medieval world. Included with these coins are the following extras:

- 1) A copy of Professor Philip Grierson's Numismatics, one of the finest numismatic historical survey book's ever written.
- 2) A copy of "An Introduction To Nine Ancient And Medieval Empires" written by our expert staff.
- 3) A bonus silver ancient coin when you send in your order before the end of the month.

If you would like to own the Old World Collection please forward $75 and sufficient postage and insurance to I.C.C. We specialize in ancient and foreign coins and invite you to contact us for any of your coin or book needs. Please address all correspondence for our ancient coin department to Mr. Dean M. Ryder and you will receive a prompt and courteous reply. Thank you.

BUY IN HASTE...REPENT AT LEISURE?

When you're about to buy a coin for your collection you should ask yourself several questions.

Do you like the condition of the coin? Is the price right for you? Do you have return privileges and, if so, for how long? Are you buying the coin from the rightful owner? Is it the scarce piece you think it is, or is it actually a less expensive variety? Has the coin been operated on: whizzed, tooled, or even plugged?

Ask yourself these questions. And ask the seller.

Then, ask ANA Certification Service some questions.

Is the coin genuine? Has it been altered? In other words, ask ANACS if you're about to spend your good money on a coin worth no more than the metal in it.

The coin you intend to buy is probably genuine. But if it's not, now is the best time to find out.

While you can exercise your return privilege.

While you can seek a refund on your purchase.

And before you make the same mistake a second time.

So when you buy a coin (1) obtain a receipt from the seller; (2) request a written statement of return privileges; and (3) send the coin immediately to: ANACS, P. O. Box 87, Ben Franklin Station, Washington, D. C. 20044 by registered mail.

Even better ... have the seller send the coin to ANACS, and buy the coin contingent upon the seller receiving certification that it is genuine.

Provide your name, address, coin description and value of coin. Enclose return postage and your fee, from the schedule below:

PAYING TOP PRICES

Not Just A Slogan But Guaranteed Results, Supported By These Facts:

- 1) We are consistently one of the biggest buyers at any major coin convention we attend. The coins that we buy from other dealers have mostly been purchased from collectors. Why not sell to the top buyer.
- 2) Year after year we have bought more collections from collectors than other dealers on a competitive bid basis. We are not afraid to bid against our competitors, we welcome the opportunity.
- 3) We have one of the larger mail order businesses in the country and we are constantly in need of good numismatic material. Since we have the customers we can and will pay more.
- 4) We have never had to pass up a collection because of size. We will not try to buy your collection and then pay you for it as we sell it.
- 5) We spent over 100 days traveling last year to buy coins. Few can match this record. If you have a collection for sale we would appreciate having an opportunity to show you how much we can pay.

To Sell Your Coins You Have The Following Options Available:

1. You may ship your coins to us with the prices wanted.
2. You may ship your coins for our offer. We will contact you immediately with our offer.
3. Large collections we will travel to see.

HASTY SELLING VS. QUICK BORROWING

Selling your collection can be profitable if you have enough time to find the best prices. But a collection sold quickly is seldom sold profitably.

In any emergency, borrow the money you need at Edelman's. Use your collection as collateral and still retain complete ownership.

At Edelman's, you can obtain quick confidential loans for any amount up to 80% of the value of your properties — from $50 to $50,000 and more. Take as long as 30 months to pay with a repayment plan tailored to your specific needs. Your collection will be safely protected in Edelman's air-conditioned vaults until you reclaim it. Write today for further information.

T. FOX NEEDS YOUR COINS

and will pay high prices to get them. If you're reading this ad, chances are you have coins to sell. If so, you've come to the right place. We are in desperate need of all numismatic items for both our mail order and our new retail outlet. Our credentials are unquestioned in the coin industry (we've advertised in Coin World for the last dozen years). Our check is the fastest in the East. Just ship your coins (insured or registered) and our offer, in the form of a check, will rocket back to you the same day your package arrives. And we mean the same day (not an annoying 2 or 3 weeks later).

Should you decide not to accept our offer (which seldom happens), we will pay shipping costs both ways. We can use just about anything, from ½ cents to $50 slugs, paper money, foreign coins, from one coin to complete collections or accumulations, in all grades. Be it $20 or $200,000, we're interested. If you feel a personal visit is necessary, one of our representatives will come to you, at your convenience. Please feel free to call us collect anytime, to discuss your holdings. Certified check or cash is always available and all dealings are strictly confidential. Our bank reference is Long Island Trust Co., Garden City Park, N.Y., Walter Cooper, V.P.

CHRISTMAS 1976

WOULD YOU SELL YOUR COINS TO A BOOK DEALER?

Admittedly, there are a number of fine professional numismatists who are knowledgeable in the field of numismatic literature and who are also excellent sources, particularly for current works.

We deal exclusively in rare and out of print numismatic books, auction sale catalogues, periodicals and other paper ephemera. No coins, paper money, stamps, etc., at all. While we know far from everything, we do pride ourselves on offering carefully described books fairly priced. Our very successful recent mail bid auction sale contained 763 lots of desirable literature. One lot was returned (the bidder bid on the wrong book)!

Rare numismatic books are not a "sideline" with us. We respectfully invite want lists. When the time comes to part with your library, we would appreciate your consideration. Whether by private treaty or by inclusion in a future mail auction, we think you will be pleased with the results.

Worthwhile consignments are now being accepted for our Spring 1977 Sale.

Details on request.

PAPER MONEY

If you are selling:

We are seriously interested in acquiring large size and scarcer small size United States paper money. We are interested in single items as well as extensive collections. We are especially in need of national bank notes and we also buy foreign paper money. If you have a collection which includes both paper money and coins, it may prove in your best financial interest to obtain a separate bid from us on your paper money as we deal exclusively and full time in paper money. We will fly to purchase if your holdings warrant.

If you are buying:

We issue periodic extensive lists of U.S. paper money, both large size, small size and fractional. Our next list is yours for the asking.

SEABY

OF LONDON

Yes! We may be based a few miles away across the water but we're pretty mobile. In fact, our experts travel to America five or six times a year to visit clients and buy collections.

We deal in world coins — ancient, medieval and modern. Do you have coins for sale? Being on Europe's doorstep we have many continental contacts and can pay top prices for choice material. Before disposing of your coins too hastily, why not write and let us know what you have?

We purchase coins for CASH. We sell coins on COMMISSION. We catalogue collections for AUCTION either in London or New York. We have a team of experts qualified to make the most of your coins. Drop us a line!

Bert Seaby, Peter Seaby, Laurence Brown, Frank Purvey and others from the Seaby establishment will be travelling around the States this year. You may be on our route or persuade us to make a detour!

Send for a list of our numismatic publications and a copy of our monthly COIN & MEDAL BULLETIN. And if there are coins you are particularly wanting — let us know!

MEDALS OF MEXICO

An Auction of an Important Collection

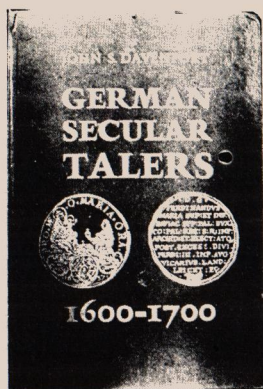

We are presently sending out our mail bid catalog of the extensive Mexican medal collection of S.G. (Memo) Riddle.

Over a thousand different medals, common to rare, are presented in the largest public offering ever seen in this field. Included are pieces that formerly resided in the Carlos Gaytan Collection, Grove Catalog plate specimens, hundreds of previously uncataloged items, such as the Kleeberg Maximilian Death Medal in Silver, in most of the scarce low-mintage silver medals of the Mexico City Mint.

The closing date for this important sale is in late November, so write or call today and we will air mail your catalog. The cost is only $2.00 for the catalog and prices realized.

COIN CABINETS

We reported last May on the 20 tray coin cabinet which we make and now these are the details of a large 30 tray cabinet with approximately double the capacity.

This cabinet is made from solid mahogany with concealed dovetails at the corners, double panelled doors and a three panelled back just as beautifully finished as the rest of the cabinet. It is 14 1/4" high, 15 7/8" wide and 13 7/8" deep. There are 30 mahogany trays, each fronted with rosewood and each fitted with two brass knobs. Trays are available with: 99 holes of 1" diameter, 72 - 1 3/16", 56 - 1 3/8", 42 - 1 5/8", 30 - 2" and 20 - 2 1/2". Plain drawers are also available of 2, 3 and 4 tray depths. Each recess is lined with a loose felt disc, black felts are normally supplied but other colours are available. The price of this cabinet, which has been designed with museums and the large collector in mind, is $775. This includes delivery by air to the U.S.A.

We are soon to produce a small 14 tray coin cabinet holding about 300 to 400 coins and information will appear early in the New Year.

Details of all our high quality furniture may be obtained from

PENNY WHIMSY

WILLIAM H. SHELDON

Sheldon's penny Whimsy has been the definitive reference work on early date large cents (1793-1814) since its original publication in 1958. This work systematically presents the whole series of the early cents using a scientific description of the more than 300 known varieties. In addition, a system of grading and valuation is presented and used throughout. With the use of Penny Whimsy's tables and 51 halftone plates (illustrating over 500 obverse and reverse dies) even a novice collector can identify the large cent varieties. This 408-page hardcover Quarterman edition is reprint of the original text with typographical and similar minor errors corrected. The plates have been reproduced from photographs rather than from the printed plates of earlier editions.
